Whiskers at the Grand Hotel

Mu Ryan

Oliver, a small ginger cat, lived in the laundry room of the Grand Hotel. He loved the warmth of the dryers and the soft piles of towels.

One day, Oliver peeked out of the laundry room and saw a bellhop rushing by with a mountain of suitcases. He decided to follow him.

Oliver tiptoed through the grand lobby, his eyes wide with wonder at the sparkling chandeliers and the smartly dressed guests.

He slipped into the hotel kitchen, where chefs were busy preparing delicious meals. The aromas of roasted chicken and freshly baked bread filled the air.

A friendly chef noticed Oliver and offered him a small piece of salmon. Oliver purred with delight, his tail swishing back and forth.

Oliver explored the hotel's ballroom, where a band was setting up for a grand party. He imagined himself dancing with the elegant guests.

He discovered the rooftop garden, a peaceful oasis high above the city. Butterflies fluttered among the flowers, and birds sang sweet melodies.

Oliver met a little girl named Lily who was staying at the hotel with her family. Lily loved cats and immediately befriended Oliver.

Lily and Oliver spent the afternoon playing hide-and-seek in the hotel's corridors. They became the best of friends, sharing secrets and laughter.

As the sun set, Oliver returned to his cozy laundry room, his heart full of happy memories. He knew that even a small cat could find adventure and friendship in the most unexpected places.
