

The Crisper Drawer Scandal

Nahom Abegaz

Arthur the Apple and Stella the Strawberry share a sweet, quiet moment in their cozy crisper drawer, surrounded by a soft cooling mist. They look like the perfect pair, dreaming of the day their little seedling will finally arrive.

Arthur waves a leafy hand goodbye as he prepares to head to the other side of the kitchen for the day. Stella stands by the drawer handle, her seeds glistening under the refrigerator light as she watches him leave.

The sun sets over the kitchen, casting long, dramatic shadows across the granite counter as Arthur returns home unexpectedly early. A low, somber cello melody seems to hum through the air as he notices the refrigerator door is slightly ajar.

Arthur stops in his tracks, his glossy red skin turning pale with shock at the sight on the dimly lit counter. Stella is not alone; she is standing close to Paulo, a rugged and spiky pineapple who wears a smug, arrogant expression.

Stella gasps, her tiny green leaves trembling as she tries to find the words to explain her presence on the counter. Paulo leans back against a heavy salt shaker, looking down at Arthur with a cold and textured gaze.

Paulo mocks Arthur in a deep voice, claiming that a smooth-skinned apple could never provide the excitement and grit that a strawberry truly desires. He flaunts his sharp, crown-like leaves, making Arthur feel small and polished.

Arthur's voice trembles with heartbreak as he reminds Stella of the three long seasons they spent together in the cold crisper drawer. He mentions their upcoming little seedling, causing Stella to break into a loud wail of despair.

The tension reaches a breaking point as Arthur reaches into his peel and pulls out a crinkled ultrasound photo. He stares at the image with eyes full of betrayal while the kitchen lights flicker overhead like a storm is coming.

Arthur delivers the crushing blow, revealing that the baby in the photo isn't round or red, but small, purple, and part of a cluster. He screams that the baby is a grape, leaving Stella frozen in a state of absolute terror and guilt.

The scene suddenly shifts to dramatic black and white as a loud thunderclap echoes through the silent kitchen. A bold To Be Continued logo flashes over Arthur's furious face just as the sound of a dramatic slap rings out.