

CENTRAL SCHOOL

NIGHT FALLS

Shadows of Central School

Tirzah Sebastian

Dark clouds gather over the imposing architecture of Central School as Victoria walks through the gates for the first time. The wind whips her long black hair around her face while students whisper in the shadows about the mysterious new arrival.

In the crowded hallway, Victoria accidentally bumps into Percy, who is leaning against the lockers with a rebellious smirk and a loose tie. The atmosphere thickens with tension as they lock eyes for the first time, neither willing to back down from the sudden confrontation.

During a quiet moment in the classroom, Percy watches Victoria from the back row with a piercing and curious gaze. When he tries to tease her about being the brave new girl, she responds with a cold, intelligent retort that leaves him momentarily stunned.

FIRST ENCOUNTER

From the shadows of the corridor, Percy observes Victoria from a distance, noticing her quiet independence and sharp eyes. For the first time in his life, he feels a genuine sense of intrigue toward someone who refuses to be intimidated by his dangerous reputation.

Percy suddenly appears beside Victoria in a deserted hallway, leaning close to her with a teasing, confident grin. Victoria meets his gaze with her signature calm and mysterious aura, making it clear that his usual schoolyard charms won't work on her.

PROTECTIVE INSTINCTS

When another student begins to insult Victoria in the hallway, Percy's protective instincts flare as he steps in and grabs the bully's collar. Victoria watches in silent surprise as the boy everyone fears becomes her unexpected shield against the school's cruelty.

Alone in the quiet, dimly lit corridors, Victoria reflects on Percy's sudden change in behavior and the strange connection forming between them. She catches him watching her from across the courtyard, his usual mask of rebellion momentarily slipping to reveal something softer.

High on the school rooftop under a dramatic sky, the two share a private moment where Percy acknowledges his dark reputation. Victoria looks at him with her sharp, discerning eyes, realizing there is a complex soul hidden beneath his rough and rebellious exterior.

ROOFTOP SHOWDOWN

The wind howls around them on the roof as Victoria admits that Percy's presence is becoming a confusing and constant part of her life. Percy smiles softly at her, his dangerous edge softening as he realizes he enjoys being the only one who can make her lose her cool.

As the sun sets over the city, Percy casually drapes his arm over Victoria's shoulder while they walk home together through the quiet streets. Though she calls him annoying with a cold glance, a small smile finally plays on her lips, marking the beginning of a love born in the shadows.