

Ronald's Rare Reward

Lauren Mantle

Ronald wears a bright shirt with a large yellow star as he enters the dark, lonely abandoned building. He looks through the dusty rooms, searching for something rare and valuable.

In the corner of a long hallway, Ronald finds a glowing silver headset resting on a rickety wooden table. The light reflects off the metal, making it look like a real treasure.

Ronald reaches out his large, red fingers to grab the headset. He thinks about how lucky he is to find such a lovely thing in this rotten place.

Suddenly, a little orange Goldfish snack rolls into the light. The Goldfish looks right at Ronald and tells him that he should not steal the headset.

Ronald feels a little rattled by the talking snack, but he holds the headset tight. He looks around the room, worried that the Goldfish might call for help.

From the shadows, Venom the long green snake slithers across the floor. Venom is Ronald's secret accomplice, and he moves through the rubble with a low hiss.

Venom whispers to Ronald that they must stop the Goldfish from telling the truth. The snake's red tongue flicks as he circles the little snack.

The Goldfish tries to leap away, but Ronald and Venom are much faster. They corner the crunchy little snack against a rough brick wall.

Ronald and Venom decide to eat the Goldfish so they can get away with their crime. They share the salty snack, and Ronald feels relieved that the witness is gone.

Ronald puts the silver headset over his ears and grins at the long snake. They relax together in the dark, abandoned room, proud of their rare and thievish victory.
