

Bilal & Husna Learn About Kindness

Azeemah Muhammed

On a bright, sunny morning, six-year-old Bilal and his twin sister Husna were playing in their lush green garden with their father, Abdullah. Suddenly, Husna pointed softly toward a quiet corner where a tiny, tired little bird sat near a dry fountain, resting under the hot sun. "Look, Baba!" whispered Bilal. "The little bird looks so thirsty and weak." Abdullah smiled gently at his observant children, reminding them that kindness begins the moment we notice when someone needs help. Mini-Lesson: Kindness starts by opening our eyes and noticing when others need help. Qur'an Reference: "And Allah is Ever Kind to His servants." (Surah Al-Baqarah, 2:207)

Husna quickly fetched a small clay bowl and poured cool, fresh water into it, while Bilal gently placed a few soft breadcrumbs nearby. The little bird fluttered its colorful wings, drank happily from the bowl, and sang a sweet chirp of gratitude. Abdullah patted their heads lovingly and said, "When we share what Allah has given us, our hearts fill with joy." Bilal and Husna beamed with pride, realizing how wonderful it feels to share. Mini-Lesson: Sharing what Allah has blessed us with is a beautiful act of kindness and gratitude. Qur'an Reference: "And whatever good you do—indeed, Allah is Knowing of it." (Surah Al-Baqarah, 2:215)

While taking a peaceful afternoon walk down their neighborhood street, the family noticed an elderly neighbor carrying a heavy basket of fresh fruit. With a gentle nod of encouragement from Abdullah, Bilal and Husna ran over with big smiles and helped carry the heavy basket together all the way to the neighbor's door. The kind elder smiled warmly and prayed for Allah to bless the sweet young helpers. Mini-Lesson: Helping others with a joyful heart makes our community strong and happy. Qur'an Reference: "Help one another in goodness and righteousness." (Surah Al-Ma'idah, 5:2)

Back home in the cozy living room, Bilal accidentally tripped over the carpet and knocked down Husna's tall wooden toy tower. "I am so sorry, Husna, it was an accident!" Bilal said right away with gentle, sincere eyes. Husna swallowed her sadness, smiled, and said softly, "That is okay, Bilal. I forgive you! Let's build an even bigger tower together." Abdullah hugged them both, proud of their polite words and forgiving hearts. Mini-Lesson: Gentle words, saying sorry, and forgiving others bring peace and love into our home. Qur'an Reference: "And speak to people good words." (Surah Al-Baqarah, 2:83)

As the golden evening sun set behind the trees, Abdullah gathered Bilal and Husna close on the porch under the warm sky. He reminded them that practicing kindness should not just be for today, but a peaceful habit for every single day of their lives. Hand in hand, Bilal and Husna happily promised to always help, share, forgive, and speak kind words wherever they go. Mini-Lesson: Make kindness a daily habit, and spread warmth and light everywhere you go. Qur'an Reference: "Is the reward for goodness anything but goodness?" (Surah Ar-Rahman, 55:60)
