

Milana's Island of Giggles

Евген Маломуж

In a faraway land where the sky was always blue and the sun shone brighter than the finest gold coin, lived a girl named Milana. She wasn't just any ordinary child; Milana had an extraordinary imagination and a knack for laughter, even in the trickiest times. Her bright spirit made every day feel like an adventure waiting to happen.

One sunny afternoon, while exploring a lush, enchanted forest, Milana stumbled upon an ancient, rolled-up map hidden beneath the roots of a giant, smiling oak tree. Its edges were crinkled, and curious symbols hinted at a far-off destination. 'I wonder what could be there?' Milana pondered, her eyes sparkling with curiosity.

Following the map's whimsical path, Milana soon reached a sparkling, turquoise shore. There, bobbing gently on the waves, was a small boat that looked astonishingly like a friendly, chubby seahorse! Its big, round eyes seemed to wink at her. 'Well, my new friend, let's embark!' Milana exclaimed, eagerly hopping aboard.

As soon as Milana picked up the oars and began to paddle, the seahorse boat magically came to life! It began to dance and twirl gracefully on the water, its tail playfully splashing. Milana burst into delighted giggles, the sound echoing across the serene ocean. This was no ordinary journey; it was a joyful ride!

Upon reaching the lost island, Milana discovered a breathtaking landscape covered in brilliant, oversized flowers and unique, whimsical plants. Her joy, however, took a surprising turn when she spotted an enormous, boisterous parrot perched on a towering, twisty tree, cackling loudly. 'Hey there, little explorer! Do you know why this island is lost?' squawked the parrot.

The parrot explained, 'Because the funniest creatures in the world live here, and no one can resist laughing! So, if you want to leave the island, you need to make three of them laugh!' Milana, always ready for a joke, thought this would be easy. She first encountered a huge elephant, comically struggling with slippery bananas.

Milana approached the elephant and said, 'Why can't bananas ever be serious? Because they're always peeling with laughter!' The elephant roared with laughter, so much that water shot from his trunk, a wonderful start to her mission! Next, she found a goofy turtle on a skateboard, tumbling over obstacles.

Milana, chuckling, asked the turtle, 'Do you know why turtles can't play soccer? Because they always forget which side the goal is on!' The turtle became so engrossed in laughter that it completely forgot about its tumble. Finally, she met a giant tiger trying to tell a joke but mixing up his words.

Milana decided to help the tiger: 'Do you know why tigers always look so serious? Because they're usually trying not to laugh at their prey!' The tiger laughed so hard that all the surrounding trees shook with his mirth. After Milana had made all three creatures laugh, the parrot returned and praised her.

Milana, happy and content, returned to her seahorse boat, understanding that laughter could connect even the most different creatures. Back home, she shared her adventures and the importance of laughter with all her friends. From that day on, Milana organized fun games and contests, making sure everyone could laugh together, keeping the magic of the lost island alive in their hearts.