

During the chaotic climax of the Last War, Earth's President vanished without a trace into the deep cosmos. Shortly after, colossal galactic fleets suddenly descended upon the skies, throwing humanity into complete turmoil and uncertainty.

Confronted by an overwhelming outer space presence, nations realized that their internal conflicts meant nothing compared to this unprecedented celestial threat. Joining hands for the first time in history, world leaders pooled their technology, knowledge, and courage to stand together.

Through shared resilience and diplomacy, humanity successfully negotiated peace with the extraterrestrial visitors and forged a grand coalition. They established the United Nations of the Planet, electing Commander Elena Vance as their first democratic global leader.

A wondrous golden age dawned upon Earth as futuristic cities flourished beneath clean energy grids and lush floating gardens. War became a distant memory, and citizens across every continent lived in joyful harmony under the UFP banner.

Years into this prosperous peace, Commander Elena Vance stood at the central orbital observatory, gazing out at a radiant, unified world. Representatives from distant star systems walked alongside humans, celebrating a decade of peaceful co-existence.

Without warning, a massive electromagnetic surge ripped through Earth's power network, plunging city lights into sudden darkness. A gargantuan shadow, far larger than any starship previously encountered, cast its dark mantle over the atmosphere.

High-frequency alarms blared across every control room on Earth as deep-space scanners picked up a ghostly, ancient transmission. Unbelievably, the signal contained the biometric signature and voice encryption of the long-lost President.

Determined to protect her people, Elena boarded the lead flagship and guided her crew toward a mysterious megastructure uncloaking behind the moon. The colossal structure pulsed with strange obsidian light, pulling the ship into its cavernous docking bay.

Deep within the heart of the ancient vessel, Elena discovered the missing President preserved inside a glowing stasis chamber. As the chamber unlocked, a holographic starmap expanded, revealing an ancient cosmic threat that Earth was destined to confront.

Holding the former leader's hand, Elena looked toward the stars with unwavering resolve and broadcast a message of hope to Earth. Though a new galactic trial lay ahead, the unified nations stood ready, bonded forever as one courageous world.