Mu Ryan

Lily found a brand-new coloring book on her table. Its cover was plain and white, waiting for colors to fill its pages. She wondered what exciting pictures lay inside, eager to begin her artistic journey.

Opening the book, Lily gasped with delight! The first page showed a simple, outlined Pikachu, completely blank. Its little ears and zig-zag tail were ready for a splash of yellow.

With a bright yellow crayon in hand, Lily carefully started coloring Pikachu. She moved her crayon back and forth, filling in the electric mouse's body with joyful strokes. Slowly, the white page began to glow with color.

As Lily finished coloring Pikachu's body, something amazing happened! Pikachu's eye gave a playful wink, and a tiny smile appeared on its face. It seemed to come alive right there on the page!

Lily's eyes widened with wonder and excitement. She flipped the page to find another blank Pokémon, a cute little Charmander. Its tail waited for a fiery orange.

She picked up an orange crayon and began coloring Charmander with enthusiasm. As soon as the last bit of orange filled its body, a small, happy flame flickered on its tail. Charmander looked ready for a warm hug!

Next, Lily found a Squirtle, waiting patiently for its turn. She chose a beautiful blue crayon and carefully colored its shell and body. A tiny, bubbly water droplet appeared near its mouth.

Now, all three Pokémon—Pikachu, Charmander, and Squirtle—were vibrantly colored and full of life on their pages. They looked so happy, their simple shapes beaming with personality. Lily felt a warm glow of pride.

Lily smiled a big, happy smile, looking at her colorful creations. She realized that her crayons didn't just add color; they brought magic and joy to each Pokémon. Her heart felt full of happiness.

Gently, Lily closed the coloring book, knowing that many more adventures awaited her. She couldn't wait to discover which Pokémon she would bring to life with her colors tomorrow. The magic of art made every day special.
