

THE MOON IS WATCHING YOU

Ayush Sai Mahenderkar

Blocky walks alone through the quiet, blocky streets of a deserted Roblox village at midnight. The surrounding digital buildings cast long, eerie shadows under the night sky. Suddenly, the pale white moon shifts into a terrifying, unnatural shade of blood red. A cold, dread-filled warning text flashes brightly across the dark computer screen.

Seeking shelter from the sudden red glow, Blocky steps inside a small, abandoned wooden house. The indoor ceiling lights begin to flicker violently, casting erratic shadows across the empty room. Through the dusty window glass, a strange and unnatural silhouette darts past into the darkness. A chill runs down the spine as the player checks the player list and realizes they are completely alone online.

Blocky cautiously gazes out the broken windowpane into the foggy village street. Standing motionless beneath the crimson moonlight is a towering, mysterious black entity with impossible proportions. Its glowing, piercing white eyes slowly and deliberately rotate to lock onto Blocky. Without warning, a new terrifying message pulses onto the glowing monitor stating that the creature knows it is being watched.

The terrifying black entity suddenly vanishes into thin air like digital smoke. Blocky bursts through the front door, sprinting frantically down the winding cobblestone roads of the village. Heavy, unnatural footsteps echo relentlessly right behind, getting closer with every frantic step. All the escape routes mysteriously twist and warp, leading right back to the same cursed house.

Desperate and out of breath, Blocky barricades inside a pitch-black back room and hides in the corner. In the absolute silence, the computer monitor across the room suddenly flickers back to life all by itself. A glowing text box appears on the screen declaring that the night has somehow been survived. Blocky lets out a long, trembling breath of pure relief, believing the nightmare has finally ended.

Before the relief can fully settle in, a chilling new message scrolls slowly across the bright screen. The text reminds the player that checking the window was terribly forgotten. With mounting dread, Blocky slowly turns around to face the glass pane behind the room. The horrific Moon Watcher is standing directly outside, staring through the transparent barrier with hollow, glowing eyes. A sudden, terrifying visual reveal strikes with maximum impact as the entire virtual world cuts completely to black.

Scene 7 content

Scene 8 content

Scene 9 content

Scene 10 content