Sevikah

Years later, Sachin sits in a crowded college lecture hall, yet he remains an island of silence amidst the chatter of his peers. He follows a rigid routine, drifting through the hallways like a shadow that no one seems to notice.

A Shared Vision

Meera, a spirited student with a curious heart, approaches Sachin as he sits alone on a stone bench. Her presence is a spark of light as she initiates their very first conversation, breaking the long silence of his world.

As their friendship blossoms, Sachin and Meera share a quiet moment in the library, where her laughter begins to melt the ice around his soul. For the first time, Sachin feels the warmth of being truly seen and understood by another person.

Driven by his newfound hope, Sachin pours his heart into his studies, his desk covered in sketches and textbooks as he strives for excellence. He transforms from an average student into a determined scholar, fueled by the desire to be worthy of Meera's belief in him.
