

Where Happiness Grows: Leo's Two Wonderful Worlds

Tsun Hin Law

Warm morning sunbeams stream through the window as Leo wakes up to gentle hugs and the sweet smell of breakfast. Sitting around the table with his family, Leo shares laughter and warm morning wishes. Home is a soft, safe place where his heart feels joyful, cozy, and ready for the day ahead.

With a bright backpack on his shoulders and a joyful wave to his parents, Leo steps inside his colorful classroom. His kind teacher welcomes him with a warm smile, and his classmates happily invite him to join the wooden block table. School is a bustling world of discovery where brand new adventures and wonderful friendships begin.

During recess, Leo and his friends play tag across the lush green playground, filling the air with giggles and bright energy. Whenever someone stumbles or feels unsure, gentle hands help them up and happy smiles return in an instant. Leo learns that school is full of caring helpers and joyful moments shared with good friends.

Back home in the peaceful evening light, Leo draws a colorful picture showing his cozy bedroom on one side and his cheerful classroom on the other. He shows his family the bright yellow suns painted over both places. Leo smiles happily, knowing that warmth, comfort, and joy belong to him both at home and at school.
