

Oliver's Cozy Countdown to Sleep

Adnan Khan

Oliver's colorful playroom is filled with toys after a long day of fun. The sun is setting outside the window, painting the sky in soft shades of orange and pink. His mother gently reminds him that it's nearly time for bed as he finishes building a block tower.

Oliver steps into a warm, bubbly bathtub and splashes happily. He makes a fluffy foam beard and sails a little yellow rubber duck across the water, giggling. The bathroom feels cozy and safe, filled with steam.

After drying off, Oliver puts on his favorite pajamas, decorated with cheerful stars and tiny moons. They feel soft and snuggly against his skin. He wiggles his toes and feels fresh and clean.

He stands on a small step stool and carefully brushes his teeth, making lots of minty bubbles. Oliver watches his reflection in the mirror, giving himself a big, clean-toothed smile. His mother helps him finish.

Oliver chooses his favorite picture book, all about animals going to sleep on a farm. He and his mother snuggle together on his bed, and she reads with a gentle voice as he turns the pages. He feels warm and comfortable.

When the story is finished, his mother tucks him tightly under a warm, patchwork quilt. She gives him a gentle kiss on his forehead and says goodnight. Oliver is feeling very sleepy now.

Oliver turns on his star projector, casting little glowing constellations across the ceiling and walls. He snuggles with his cuddly stuffed bear, listening to the soft sounds of the evening outside. His eyes begin to feel heavy.

In his thoughts, Oliver is floating on a fluffy white cloud, sailing quietly through the starry sky. He wave to a friendly looking moon as he moves through the peaceful dream world. Everything feels quiet and calm.

His room is dark now, lit only by the gentle moonlight from the window. Oliver's breathing slows down as he drifts closer and closer to sleep, feeling completely safe in his cozy bed.

ly, Oliver is fast asleep, a peaceful smile on his face. The moon and stars guard his room, keeping his dreams happy and sweet. Tomorrow will be a wonderful new day.
