

The Ruthless Deal

Kiran Hota

Kiran stands by a large window, her gaze fixed on the horizon with a strength that belies her restricted life. Her beauty is undeniable, and her presence radiates a quiet independence that even the cold walls of her uncle's mansion cannot dim.

In the privacy of her room, Kiran holds a faded photograph of her missing parents, her eyes filled with a deep longing. Despite her uncle Devraj's strict control, she spends her nights searching for clues about where they might be, determined to find the truth.

Devraj, a powerful and stern politician, watches Kiran from the doorway with a cold, calculating expression. He treats her not as family, but as a piece on a chessboard, ensuring she never makes a move without his permission or knowledge.

The grand wedding hall is filled with flowers and lights as Kiran arrives for her best friend's special day. She wears a simple, elegant saree that highlights her natural grace, making her stand out effortlessly among the extravagant and flashy guests.

As Kiran laughs with her friend, her radiant smile seems to illuminate the entire room, drawing the attention of everyone nearby. It is a smile so genuine and warm that it could soften the hardest of hearts and stop time itself.

Across the crowded room, Aryan Pathak stands alone, a man whose reputation for ruthlessness precedes him. His face is a mask of calm indifference as he surveys the elite gathering, showing no interest in the festivities until his eyes land on Kiran.

Aryan's gaze locks onto Kiran, and for the first time in years, his cold composure wavers. He watches her from the shadows, captivated by the light she brings to the room and the quiet strength he senses behind her beautiful eyes.

Aryan walks directly toward Devraj, his presence commanding immediate silence from those nearby. Devraj looks up, his face turning pale with shock that the most powerful and feared businessman in the city is choosing to speak to him.

With a voice as calm as ice, Aryan tells Devraj that he intends to marry Kiran, leaving no room for argument or negotiation. Seeing an opportunity to tether himself to Aryan's immense power, Devraj agrees to the arrangement instantly, ignoring Kiran's right to choose.

Kiran stands alone on the balcony, looking out at the night sky and dreaming of the parents she has lost. She is completely unaware that her life has just been changed forever by a man who claims to have no heart, setting the stage for a new, dangerous chapter.