

COSMIC CLASH

A TALE OF TWO REALMS

The Fall of Ignis-7

Almostzero

The planet Ignis-7 is a hellscape of fire and debris, with destruction visible in every direction. Kaelthor floats amidst a swirling void storm, his molten body pulsing with unstable energy as the world burns beneath him.

Panicked soldiers flee the crumbling cities, their screams lost to the roar of the flames and cracking earth. One brave soldier looks up in despair, shouting a final, futile plea to the king who no longer recognizes his own people.

Kaelthor raises a hand, gathering a terrifying mixture of solar fire and dark void energy into a single point. With a cold, detached gaze, he releases an Infernal Void Burst, a shockwave that obliterates the entire region in a blinding flash.

The sky above the dying planet cracks open like glass, revealing a blinding divine light from beyond the stars. From this celestial rift, Rudra descends in a glowing, majestic form, her presence momentarily stilling the chaotic fires.

Kaelthor turns slowly toward the goddess, a corrupted smile creeping across his molten face as a dark aura expands from his core. He speaks with a voice layered with shadows, claiming that he is no longer just a king, but a vessel for the void.

Kaelthor hurls a spear of concentrated fire and void energy directly at Rudra. She raises her hand calmly, manifesting a golden divine shield that absorbs the impact in a thunderous explosion of light and sparks.

TITANIC CLASH

The two titans clash in a brutal close-combat struggle that sends shockwaves through the atmosphere. Rudra manages to push Kaelthor back and summons golden celestial chains that wrap around his molten limbs to bind his power.

Kaelthor struggles violently against the divine restraints, and for a fleeting second, a flicker of his former humanity returns to his eyes. However, the darkness surges back with a vengeance, and he shatters the golden chains with a terrifying burst of raw strength.

Kaelthor launches a final, massive void inferno attack directly into the planet's core, causing the entire world to crack apart. Realizing the planet is lost, Rudra begins the Multiverse Seal Protocol, weaving complex cosmic symbols into the air.

A blinding white explosion fades to reveal Ignis-7 compressed into a small, glowing cube floating in the silent void of space. Behind Rudra, the shadow of Malvexis emerges, revealing that the corruption has already spread through rifts to ten other worlds.