

Delphie's Midnight Lullaby

Delphie's Moonlight Lullaby

Anadu Nzubechukwu

Delphie the dolphin leaped through the sparkling blue waves of the tropical ocean, her sleek silver skin glistening in the morning light. The sun turned the spray into tiny diamonds that danced around her as she whistled a happy tune to the seagulls flying above.

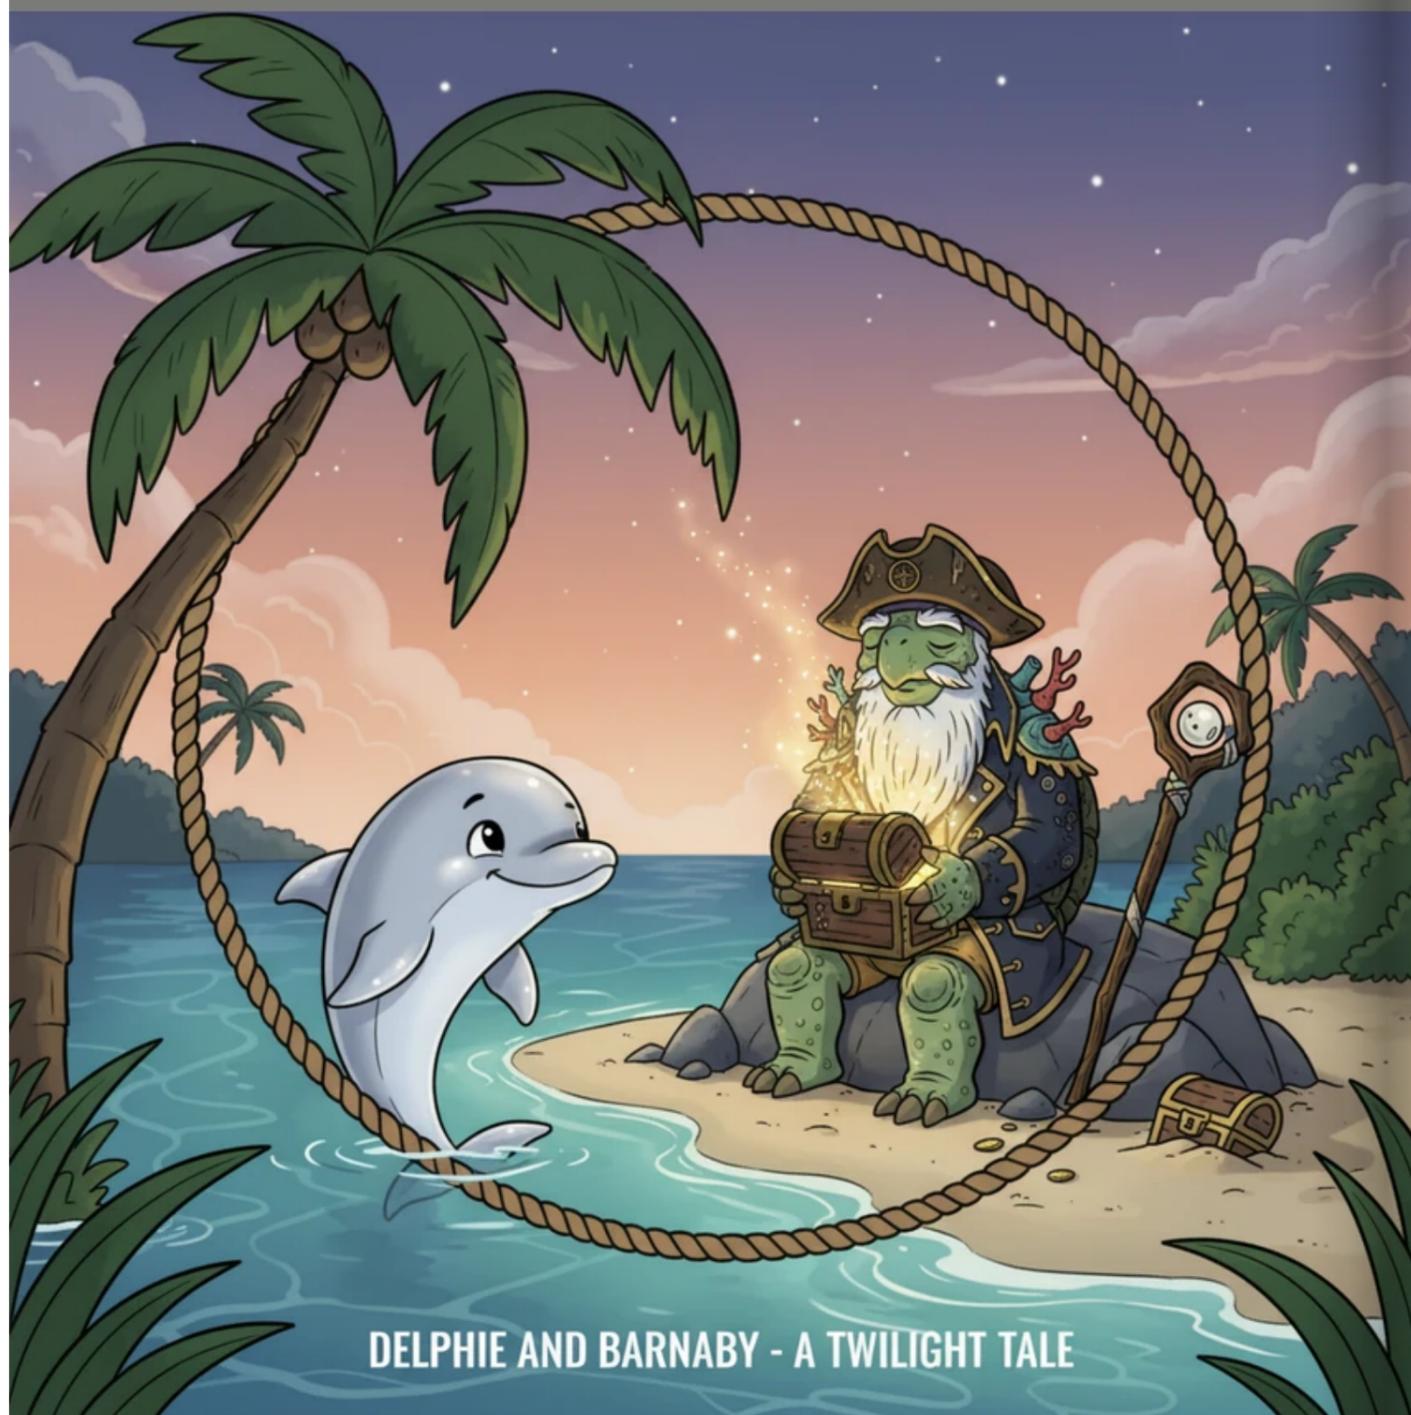

She dove deep into the cool, clear water to greet her best friend, a wise old sea turtle named Barnaby who was resting near a coral garden. Together, they glided past colorful schools of fish that shimmered like a living rainbow in the dappled sunlight filtering from the surface.

DELPHIE & BARNABY DISCOVER THE SUNKEN TREASURE

As the afternoon drifted by, Delphie discovered a hidden grotto filled with glowing anemones and soft, swaying sea fans. The gentle pink and purple lights flickered like underwater lanterns, creating a magical playground for the young dolphin to explore and play.

The sky began to turn a warm shade of orange and gold as the sun dipped toward the horizon, painting the clouds in fiery colors. Delphie slowed her pace, feeling the calming rhythm of the ocean as the day started to fade into a quiet evening.

A giant silver moon rose high above the water, casting a shimmering path of light across the gentle waves. Delphie followed the moonlight, feeling peaceful and safe in the vast, quiet sea as the stars began to twinkle one by one.

She found a cozy, sheltered cove where the water was as still as a mirror and protected from the wind. The gentle sound of the tide lapping against the sandy shore was like a soft, rhythmic lullaby meant just for her.

Delphie blew a few tiny, translucent bubbles that floated toward the surface like little silver dreams. She closed her eyes halfway, letting the gentle current rock her back and forth in a warm, watery cradle of comfort.
