

A Fun Day at the Park

Ayeni Kehinde

The sun shines brightly in a big blue sky, beaming down on a lush green park. Sam, a cheerful boy with a wide grin, and Mia, a giggling girl with bouncy pigtails, stand at the park entrance, their eyes sparkling with excitement. Colorful flowers bloom around them, and a gentle breeze rustles the leaves on tall trees.

Sam and Mia burst into laughter as they race across the expansive green grass. Sam's legs are a blur as he runs, while Mia hops on one foot, then skips with lighthearted joy. They leap high into the air, their arms outstretched like playful birds, leaving a trail of happy energy behind them.

Suddenly, their eyes catch sight of a large, vibrant red ball resting on the soft grass. Sam, with a curious tilt of his head, bends down to pick it up, his fingers wrapping around its smooth surface. Mia claps her hands in delight, her expressive face lighting up with an idea for a new game.

Sam winds up and throws the big red ball with a mighty swing, sending it soaring through the air. Mia, with incredible agility and a triumphant smile, stretches out her arms and perfectly catches the ball. Their teamwork and coordination are a joy to behold, making their game even more fun.

The runaway ball finally comes to a gentle stop right beside a cozy park bench. A small, fluffy brown dog, with floppy ears and an inquisitive nose, is resting near the bench. Its tail begins to wag slowly, its attention now drawn to the bright red orb.

The little dog's tail wags faster, thumping against the ground as it lets out happy "Woof! Woof!" barks. Its eyes sparkle as it looks from the ball to Sam and Mia, inviting them to play. Sam and Mia giggle, charmed by the friendly canine's joyful greeting.

With big smiles, Sam and Mia gently approach the wagging dog. They kneel down on the grass and carefully pat its soft, brown fur, feeling its warmth and friendliness. The dog leans into their touch, clearly enjoying the new attention from its two new friends.

“Time to eat,” calls Mum, her voice warm and inviting from a nearby picnic blanket. Sam and Mia happily join her, sitting on the checkered mat. They munch on delicious jam on toast and sip sweet red juice, enjoying their yummy lunch in the sunshine.

As the sun begins its gentle descent, painting the sky with soft orange and pink hues, Sam and Mia stand at the park exit, waving goodbye. "See you soon, park!" they chime together, their voices full of contentment. It was truly a day to remember, filled with laughter, play, and new friends.
