The morning sun peeks over the garden fence, casting a golden glow on the dew-covered grass. Daithi, Oisin, Malliadh, and baby Tadhg stand at the back door with their colorful baskets, eyes wide with excitement for the hunt to begin.

Daithi, the tallest of the bunch, adjusts his blue glasses and scans the high branches of the apple tree. He spots a bright purple egg tucked away in the crook of a limb and reaches up with his long arms to claim the first prize.

Oisin giggles as he pushes aside the leaves of a low-hanging bush, his green glasses reflecting the spring flowers. He finds two polka-dotted eggs hidden in the shade and carefully places them into his woven basket with a round-faced grin.

Little Malliadh skips through the tulip patch, her blonde hair bouncing and her earrings shimmering in the light. She discovers a sparkly pink egg nestled among the petals and holds it up high for everyone to see.

Baby Tadhg crawls across the soft lawn, his ginger hair tufts blowing in the gentle breeze. He lets out a happy squeal when he bumps into a giant, soft-toy egg hidden right in the middle of the grass.

The children gather around a mysterious map they found tucked inside a hollow log. They huddle close, pointing at the drawings of a secret golden egg hidden somewhere deep within the garden's secret corners.

To reach the next clue, Daithi carefully lifts Oisín up so he can peek over the stone wall. Teamwork makes the hunt even more fun as they share tips and point out hidden colors to one another.

Malliadh and Tadhg discover a hidden path leading under the weeping willow tree, where the branches create a magical green tent. Tucked inside the roots, they find a whole nest of chocolate treats waiting to be shared.

With their baskets heavy and their hearts full, the four siblings gather their findings on a large picnic blanket. They count their eggs together, marveling at the rainbow of colors they managed to collect as a team.

As the afternoon sun warms the garden, the family sits together sharing stories of their favorite finds. The great Easter hunt ends with sticky chocolate smiles and the warmth of a perfect day spent together.
