Ayan and Aisha sit in their bright classroom as their teacher announces a mysterious quest to find the hidden fashion code. Suddenly, a magical bag begins to glow with a soft, golden light right on their desk, leaving Ayan wide-eyed with wonder.

Aisha carefully reaches into the glowing bag and pulls out a beautifully embroidered takiya cap. As soon as Ayan places the traditional hat on his head, a bright flash fills the room and a floating message appears, telling them to find all styles to unlock the code.

The children are whisked away to a rustic village where they meet a kind man wrapped in a long, heavy shapan coat. He explains that his clothing is both warm and traditional, giving Aisha the first set of clues to write down in her notebook.

Walking further into the village, they encounter a girl wearing a flowing koylek dress and a magnificent, tall saukele headpiece. She describes her outfit as beautiful and unique, and Ayan realizes these are more important words needed to solve the puzzle.

A cold wind begins to blow as the scenery shifts to a snowy landscape where a young boy offers Ayan a thick ton fur coat and a cozy boric hat. They learn that these fur garments are essential for staying warm, adding another piece to their growing collection of fashion secrets.

With a sudden whoosh of air, Ayan and Aisha find themselves back in the bustling modern city, dressed in trendy hoodies, jeans, and sneakers. Ayan notices how comfortable and stylish they feel, realizing that modern clothes have their own special place in the code.

The sun shines brightly as the duo explores a summer park, with Aisha wearing light sandals and sunglasses while Ayan adds a sleek belt to his outfit. They identify the words light and modern, feeling confident that they have finally gathered all the clues they need.

They step back into their classroom, where the teacher waits patiently for their answer. Ayan and Aisha share their discovery, explaining that style is a perfect mix of tradition, comfort, beauty, and individuality.

The teacher nods in approval, explaining that they didn't just find words, but truly understood the soul of fashion. The classroom walls seem to shimmer with the patterns and textures of all the clothes they saw on their adventure.

Ayan and Aisha stand together, feeling proud of their new knowledge and their own unique outfits. A final glowing message appears above them, reminding everyone to seek out hidden meanings and build a style that is truly their own.
