

A whimsical illustration of a monkey, a squirrel, and a hedgehog in a stormy forest. The monkey is lying down under a large green leaf, looking tired with one eye closed. The squirrel is sitting on the ground, holding a stick. The hedgehog is sitting next to the monkey, looking up at it. In the background, there is a river, trees, and a lightning bolt in the dark sky.

In a dense forest lived an energetic little monkey named Pipi. He spent his days swinging happily through the branches, never wanting to work hard like the other animals.

Dark clouds covered the sky as torrential rain poured down.

The little squirrel hopped into a cozy tree hollow and the hedgehog curled in a dry nest, but Pipi had no home, huddled alone on a branch, soaked to the skin.

Shivering Pippi, wet through,
determinedly thought:
'When tomorrow's sun rises,
I will build the best house
in the forest!'

The weather is so nice today,
it's a pity not to play.

Building the house can wait
until tomorrow!

On the second day,
Pipi still hadn't started building.
Instead, he excitedly drew blueprints for a grand house
with a slide and a swing.

A squirrel, a monkey, and a hedgehog are in a forest setting. The squirrel is on the left, looking at a blueprint on the ground. The monkey is in the center, waving and running. The hedgehog is on the right, also waving. A speech bubble from the monkey says "It will be ready tomorrow!".

It will be ready tomorrow!

Tomorrow my new
building is finished,
please come over
for a feast!

On the agreed day,
Pipi was still fast asleep
high in the tree, dreaming of a housewarming party with friends.

Didn't I tell you to come tomorrow?
My new house won't
be built until tomorrow!

Pipi was stranded
in the rain.

His friends hurried home
as the storm poured down.
