

The Little Seed That Could

awais iqbal

Once upon a time, in a big, beautiful garden, lived a tiny seed named Sunny. Sunny was smaller than all the other seeds and often felt overlooked.

One sunny morning, the gardener planted all the seeds. Sunny worried, 'I'm too small to grow into anything beautiful!'

The rain began to fall, and Sunny felt a surge of energy. 'Maybe,' Sunny thought, 'I can try just a little bit.'

Sunny pushed a tiny root down into the earth, and a little sprout reached for the sky. It was hard work, but Sunny kept going.

The sun shone brightly, warming Sunny's sprout. Other plants laughed, 'Look at the tiny sprout! It will never become a flower.'

Sunny ignored the teasing and focused on growing. More leaves unfurled, and the sprout grew taller each day.

One day, a ladybug landed on Sunny's stem.
'You're so brave and strong,' she said. 'I admire your determination.'

Sunny felt a warm glow of happiness. The encouragement gave Sunny even more energy to grow.

Finally, a bud appeared on Sunny's stem. It grew bigger and bigger, filled with the promise of something beautiful.

With a final burst of effort, Sunny bloomed into a magnificent sunflower, taller and brighter than any other flower in the garden. Sunny learned that even the smallest seed can achieve great things with self-belief and perseverance.