Dhiyaul Aiman

Ustazah Syanina walks through the grand gates of SJKC Yuk Choi under the bright morning sun. Her bag is filled with books, and her heart is brimming with excitement to start a new day in this vibrant school.

Inside the cheerful classroom, Ustazah Syanina greets her students with a warm and bright smile. Students from various backgrounds respond with respect and eagerness, ready to learn from their beloved teacher.

While standing at the whiteboard, Ustazah explains moral values using simple examples that everyone can relate to. She integrates local cultural elements to make the lesson engaging and meaningful for every child in the room.

During recess, Ustazah Syanina sits with her colleagues, Cikgu Lim and Cikgu Tan, in the school canteen. They share their lunch and chat happily, reflecting the strong bond of friendship and unity among the teachers.

A student looks confused by the lesson, so Ustazah Syanina approaches and guides them with great patience. She offers encouraging words that help the student regain their confidence and feel supported.

As a cultural festival approaches, Ustazah Syanina works with the students to decorate the hall with red lanterns and decorative ketupat. The school atmosphere becomes vibrant with a beautiful blend of colors and traditions.

Under a shady tree in the school courtyard, Ustazah tells a story about the importance of helping one another regardless of background. The students listen intently, absorbing the lesson of kindness and mutual respect.

When heavy rain begins to fall, Ustazah Syanina ensures all her students stay dry while waiting for their parents. She kindly shields the younger children with her umbrella as she walks them safely to their cars.

As a token of appreciation, a group of students presents a handmade card filled with colorful drawings and thank-you notes. Ustazah Syanina is deeply moved by the sincere kindness and love of her students.

Watching the sunset over the school building, Ustazah Syanina smiles with gratitude for being part of the SJKC Yuk Choi family. She realizes that diversity is not a barrier, but a bridge to a more beautiful and harmonious world.
