

Sparkle's Great Escape

Mirwais Raoufi

Sparkle, a tiny, bright-eyed fish, lived in a small, calm pond. She often gazed up at the big, blue sky, dreaming of a much bigger, sparkling world called the ocean.

One sunny morning, Sparkle decided it was time for an adventure! With a determined flick of her tail, she leaped out of the pond, landing with a splash in a nearby puddle.

The puddle was small, but Sparkle felt a thrill of excitement. She wiggled and splashed, exploring every tiny corner of her new, temporary home.

Soon, the puddle began to shrink under the warm sun. Sparkle knew she had to keep moving, so with another brave leap, she landed in a gurgling stream, rushing past colorful rocks.

The stream was much faster, carrying Sparkle past tall, green reeds and buzzing dragonflies. She met a friendly snail who encouraged her onward, pointing with a little antennae.

As the stream grew wider, Sparkle encountered a playful frog. The frog, with a big grin, showed her how to navigate around some tricky lily pads, making her laugh with his bouncy hops.

Suddenly, the stream tumbled into a magnificent, sparkling waterfall! Sparkle took a deep breath and, with a brave little flick, plunged down, feeling the rush of the cool water.

She landed in a wide, winding river, where she saw fish much bigger than herself. They swam gracefully, and Sparkle felt a sense of awe and wonder at the vastness around her.

The river finally flowed into the most beautiful place Sparkle had ever seen: the vast, shimmering ocean! Schools of colorful fish swam by, and she felt a joyful splash in her heart.

Sparkle, now swimming freely in the boundless ocean, made new friends and explored vibrant coral reefs. She knew her dream had come true, and every day was a new, exciting adventure.
