Mu Ryan

Starla, a bright girl, practices her dance moves. She spins with joy, her arms outstretched. The music plays in her heart, making her feet tap. She loves to dance and bring smiles.

Suddenly, a shadowy swirl appears in the sky. It drifts slowly, making everything a little dull. Flowers droop and colors seem to fade. Starla looks up, her smile turning to a thoughtful frown.

Starla knows what to do! With a quick twirl, her everyday clothes transform. She now wears a sparkling outfit, ready for action. Her microphone gleams, a tiny star on its top.

Starla steps forward and begins to dance. Each move creates a tiny burst of light. The shadowy swirl shies away a little. Her energy is bright and strong.

More shadowy gloomies appear, looking grumpy and dark. They float around, trying to make the world even dimmer. They don't like Starla's bright music. Starla stands tall, unfazed.

Starla lifts her microphone and sings a beautiful, catchy tune. A wave of shimmering sound spreads out. It's full of joy and light. The gloomies pause, surprised.

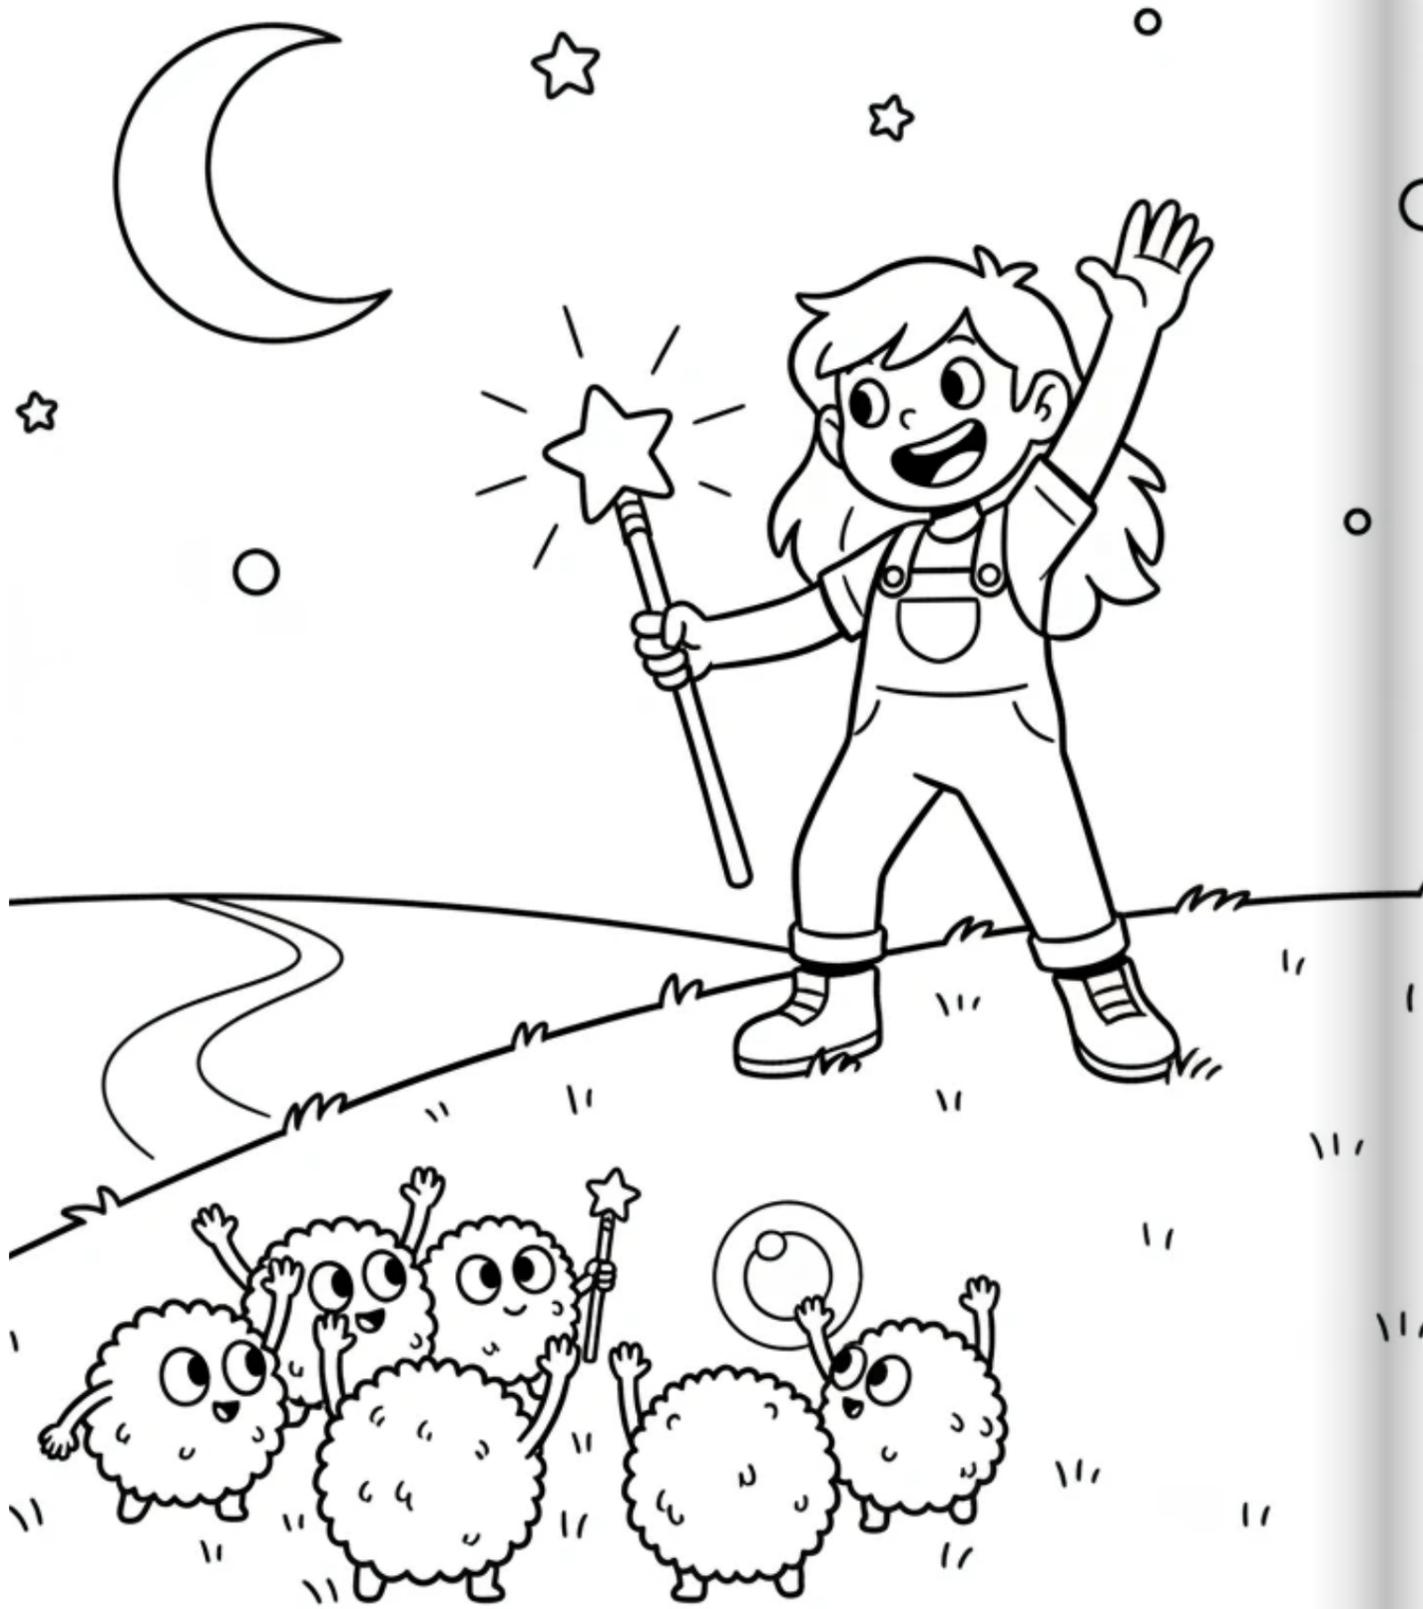

The light and music are too much for the gloomies! They start to shrink and sparkle with tiny lights. Their grumpy faces turn into little smiles. They are becoming friendly fizz-fuzzies.

Soon, all the fizz-fuzzies are small and happy. They float around Starla, dancing along to her music. They learned to love the light and rhythm. Everyone is having fun together.

The shadowy gloom is completely gone. The sky is clear, and the flowers are bright again. All the colors of the world shine vibrantly. Starla smiles, her mission complete.

Starla waves goodbye to her new fizz-fuzzy friends. She knows that even the smallest light can chase away shadows. She is ready for her next adventure, wherever music is needed.
