

The Midnight Whispers

Drei

In this quiet town, something truly magical and strange happens every single time night falls over the rooftops.

As darkness settles, everyone suddenly transforms into glowing, ethereal spirits with gentle smiles on their faces.

Rather than haunting anyone, they are given a precious chance to do something special they always dreamed of while alive.

A poor man finds his dream house, a passionate girl sings on a massive stage, and a young boy plays basketball in a glowing stadium.

However, there is one unbreakable rule in this town that dictates everyone must return to their normal lives once the sun rises.

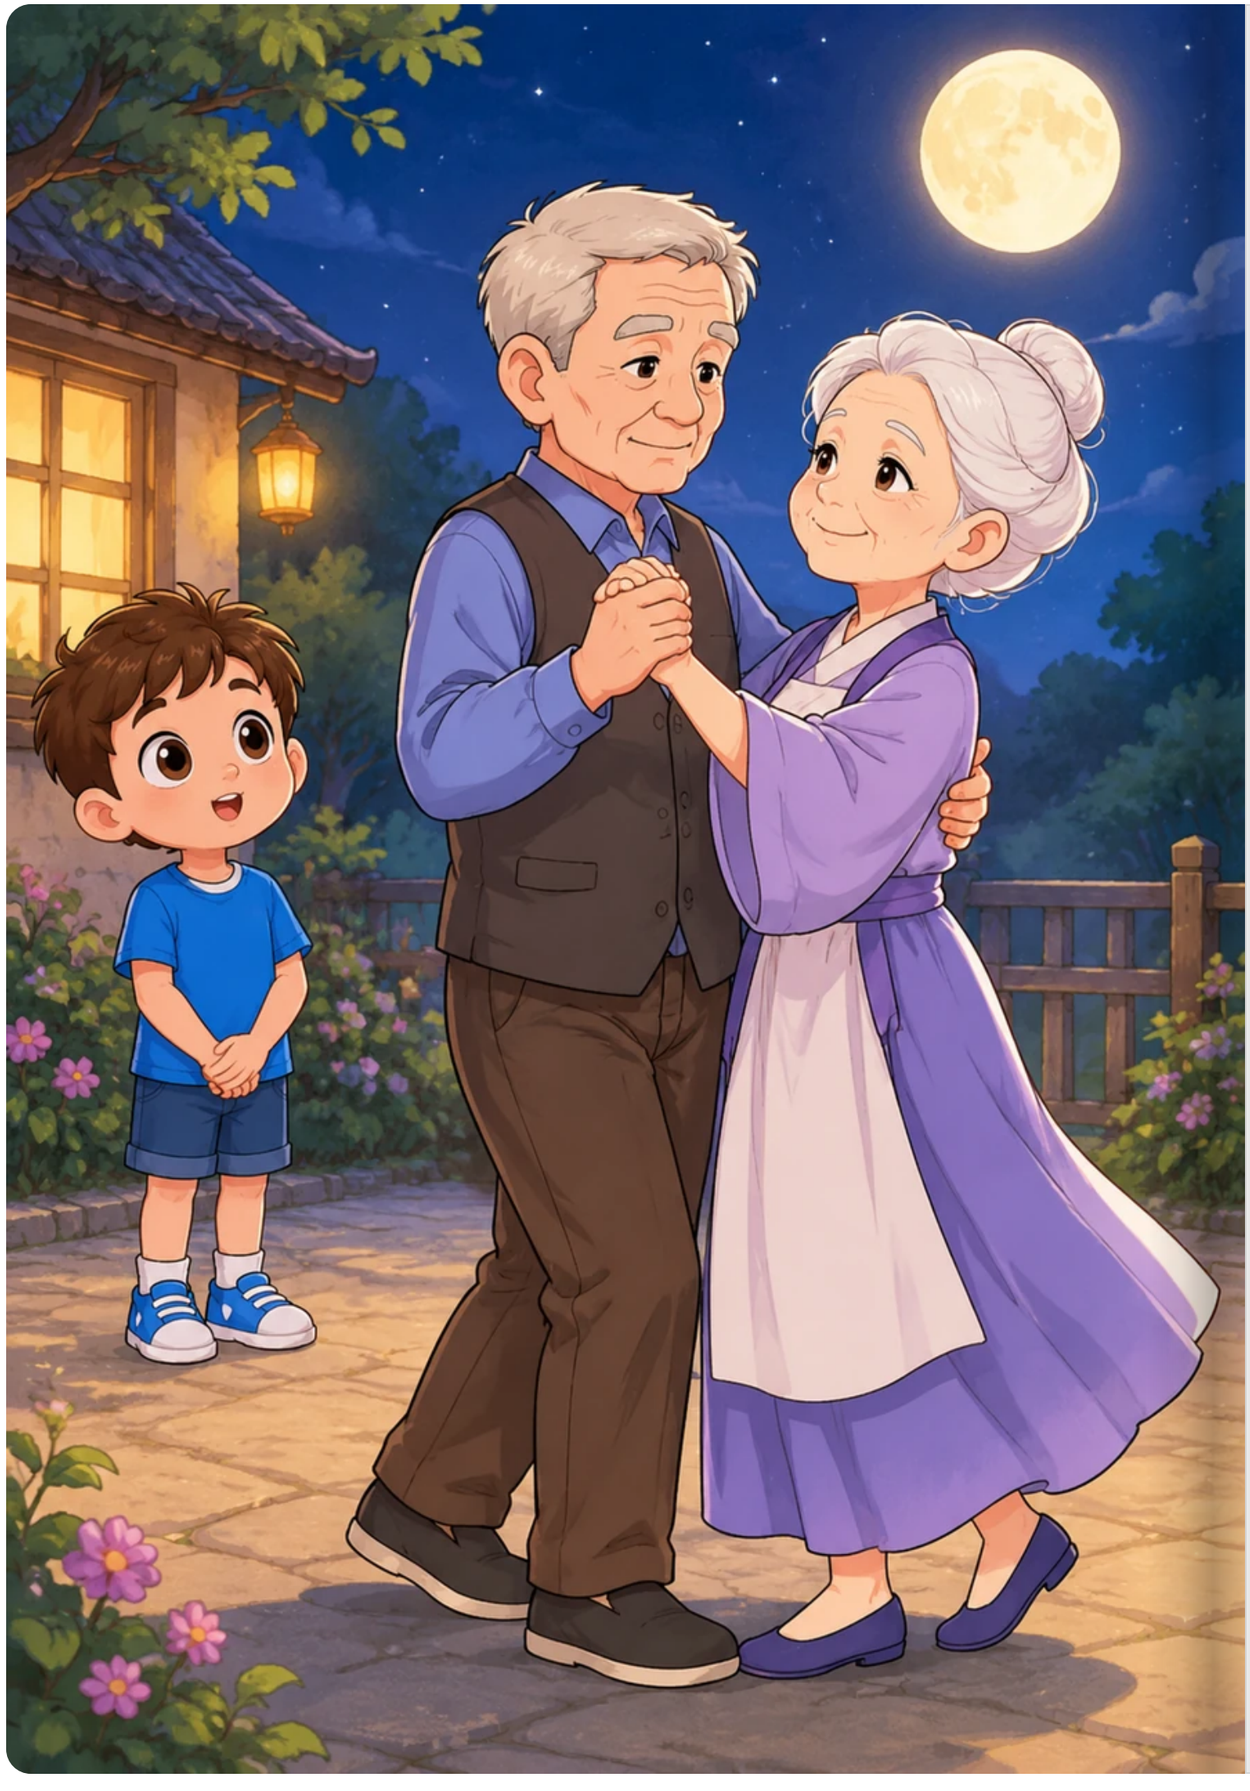

One fateful night, a young boy named Leo decides to stay wide awake to uncover the true secret behind the glowing townspeople.

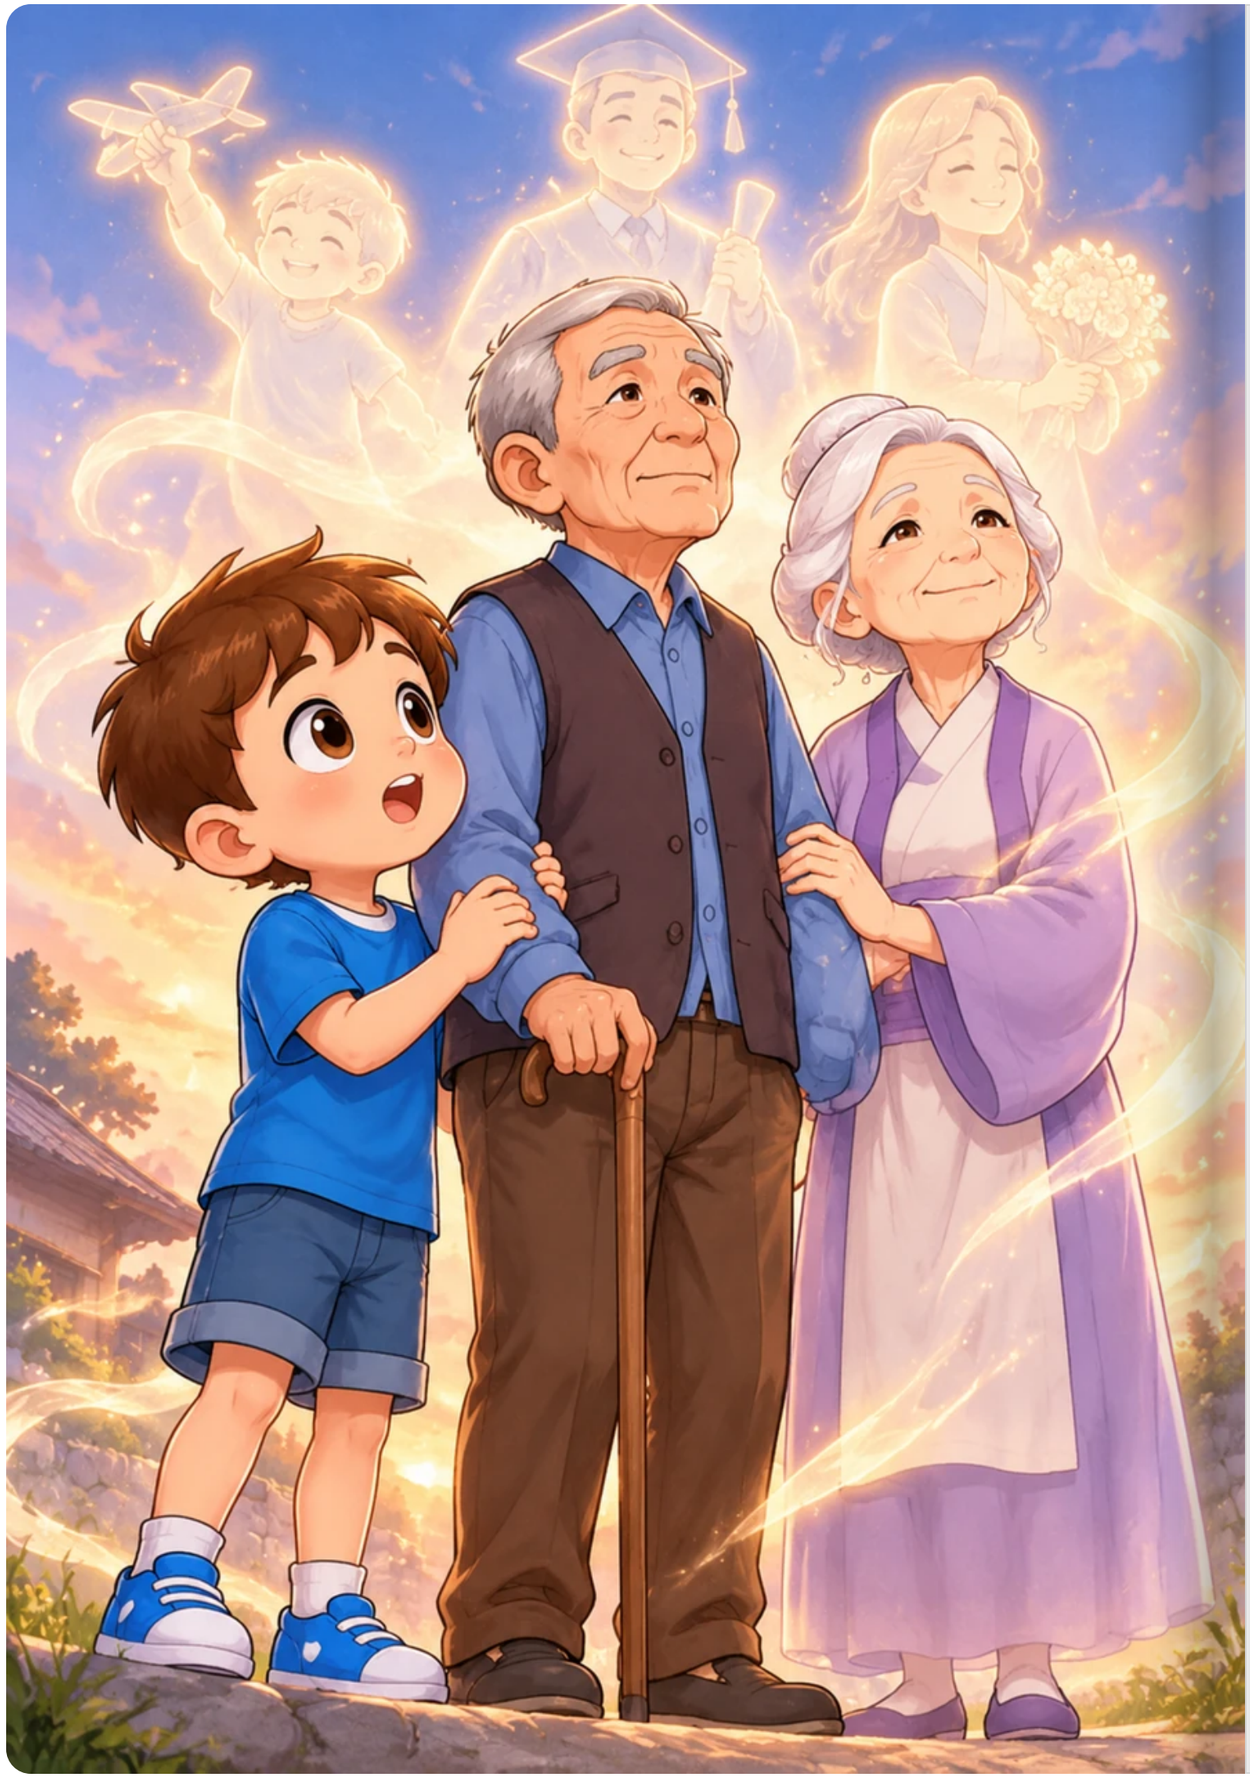

He notices an old man sitting alone outside an abandoned house, refusing to join the joyful celebrations of the night.

Approaching the old man, Leo asks who he is waiting for, and learns of a heartbreaking promise made to a beloved wife long ago.

Suddenly, a gentle woman appears, and the old man finally gets to hold her hand and dance with her once again under the moonlight.

As the dawn approaches, Leo finally understands that people here become spirits not to escape life, but to experience the dreams it never gave them.