

Leo

Numbers

1, 2, 3 Oops 6 And 7 Did It!

Alacia Hale-Winters

Leo stood in his sunny backyard, holding his special counting notebook. Red Number 1 waved from a tree, Green Number 2 swung on a vine, Orange Number 3 bounced over a puddle, thoughtful Purple Number 4 sat with a map, and clumsy Grey Number 5 tripped over a toy, but smiled. Leo wanted to count all the way to 10, but some numbers were missing!

Leo checked his counting chart. 'One, two, three, four, five... wait! Where are six and seven?' The other numbers looked just as puzzled, shrugging their little shoulders and looking around. Leo knew he had to find his missing friends.

A little further in the garden, Leo found more friends! There was cheerful Teal Number 8, bouncing happily and hugging a bright balloon. Strong Black Number 9 easily lifted a small log, showing off his muscles. Organized Lime Number 10, hands on hips, was cheerfully arranging a pile of colorful leaves.

The big numbers leaned in close to Leo, whispering and pointing towards a thick, leafy bush. 'Psst, Leo!' whispered Number 8 with a playful grin, 'Something funny is happening over there... maybe 6 and 7 are involved!'

With all his number friends, Leo began to search high and low. He crawled on his hands and knees, peeking under rocks and behind giant flowers. He looked up into the trees and even behind the garden gnome, determined to find the missing duo.

Suddenly, a tiny giggle floated from behind a big, leafy bush! Leo crept closer and saw Yellow Number 6 and Blue Number 7 peeking out, their eyes wide with playful mischief. 'Aha!' Leo whispered, 'There you are, 6 and 7!'

Leo pointed his finger playfully at the two mischievous numbers. 'What are you two up to?' he asked with a smile. 6 and 7 just grinned back, their hands behind their backs, pretending to be completely innocent. All the other numbers watched, giggling and pointing.

The scene around them revealed the aftermath of 6 and 7's fun! There was a little spilled paint on a garden pot, a tripped shoelace tied to a garden hose, and toys scattered everywhere. 6 and 7 finally confessed, still with mischievous grins, 'It was us! But it was just a little fun!'

Everyone burst into laughter! Leo and all the numbers found 6 and 7's playful antics hilarious. Even though 6 and 7 were a bit mischievous, their fun-loving spirit was contagious, and Leo knew they meant no harm. The sunny meadow filled with happy sounds.

Soon, 6 and 7 were cheerfully helping everyone tidy up the scattered toys and untangle the shoelaces, with big smiles on their faces. Then, all the numbers, from 1 to 10, gathered around Leo, holding hands in a big, happy circle. Counting was so much fun when everyone was together!
