

Cinderella: A Timeless Tale of Kindness

Sheldina

Once upon a time, in a grand old house, lived a beautiful girl named Ella. She lived with her cruel stepmother and two stepsisters who made her life miserable.

Ella was forced to do all the housework, from cleaning to cooking. She was often covered in cinders, which earned her the cruel nickname 'Cinderella'.

One day, an invitation arrived at their house. The Prince was holding a grand ball to find a wife. The stepmother and stepsisters were thrilled, but Cinderella was left behind.

Cinderella was heartbroken. Suddenly, a fairy godmother appeared! With a wave of her wand, she transformed a pumpkin into a carriage and Cinderella's rags into a beautiful gown.

The fairy godmother warned Cinderella that the magic would only last until midnight. Cinderella promised to return before the clock struck twelve.

At the ball, Cinderella's beauty and grace captivated everyone, especially the Prince. They danced the night away, lost in each other's eyes.

As the clock began to strike midnight, Cinderella remembered her promise. She rushed out of the palace, losing one of her glass slippers on the stairs.

The Prince was heartbroken to see her leave.
He picked up the glass slipper and vowed to find the woman whose foot it fit.

The Prince searched the kingdom, trying the slipper on every woman. Finally, he arrived at Cinderella's house. The stepsisters tried to squeeze their feet into the slipper, but it wouldn't fit.

Cinderella was hidden away, but the Prince insisted on seeing her. The slipper fit perfectly! The Prince recognized her and they were married, living happily ever after.
