PUTRI KUNING: A DAUGHTER'S COURAGE

In front of a magnificent golden palace, Princess Yellow stands with a gentle smile under a bright, sunny sky filled with blooming flowers. This is the story of a young girl whose heart is as bright as her name.

One morning, the King prepares for a long journey to a distant land, carrying his travel bags as his ten daughters gather around to say goodbye. The air is filled with excitement and the rustle of royal robes as the journey begins.

Nine of the princesses excitedly wave their hands, shouting out long lists of expensive silks and sparkling jewels they want their father to bring back. Their faces are full of greed and anticipation for their promised gifts.

When the King asks Princess Yellow what she desires, she simply smiles and says she only wishes for his safe return. The King looks deeply moved by her selfless love and gentle spirit, holding her hands tenderly.

Her older sisters burst into mean laughter, teasing Princess Yellow for being foolish and not asking for any treasures. While they mock her, the young princess remains calm and silent, unfazed by their cruelty.

The Princess Tends

While her father is away, Princess Yellow spends her days busily tending to the palace gardens and watering the vibrant flowers. She is a hardworking girl who finds joy in being helpful and keeping the kingdom beautiful.

In contrast, her nine sisters spend their time lounging lazily on silk cushions, ignoring their chores and showing no care for the palace. They ignore their sister's hard work, thinking only of the riches that will soon arrive.

Finally, the day arrives when the King returns to the palace gates, his carriage laden with treasures from his long journey. The entire kingdom gathers to welcome their ruler home after his long absence.

Princess Yellow runs to her father and wraps him in a warm, heartfelt hug, showing that his safety is the greatest gift she could ever receive. The King holds her close, cherishing her genuine affection above all else.

While the other sisters are busy scrambling for their expensive gifts and jewels, the King realizes that Princess Yellow's kindness is the most precious treasure of all. They all learn that being diligent, kind, and caring is the true path to happiness.
