

Leo Spark and the Big WHY

George Walker

Leo sits at his desk, surrounded by textbooks, a puzzled expression on his face. A giant, swirling question mark hovers above his head, reflecting his uncertainty about the future. His room feels a bit drab, mirroring his lack of direction. He clutches a pencil, but the paper in front of him remains blank.

Suddenly, a friendly, encouraging voice seems to whisper from a brightly colored poster on his wall, asking, 'What's YOUR WHY?' The poster features a smiling character pointing to a path leading to a vibrant, sunlit future. Leo looks up, intrigued, a tiny spark of curiosity igniting in his eyes.

Leo closes his eyes, imagining. Around him, playful thought bubbles float, each depicting a different value: a heart for kindness, a globe for adventure, a diploma for achievement, a helping hand for community. He touches a few, realizing what truly matters to him. His expression shifts from confused to contemplative.

With newfound clarity, Leo enthusiastically creates a magnificent vision board. It's a collage of bright, exaggerated images: a nurse's cap gleaming, a cozy three-bedroom house with a welcoming porch, a passport flying towards an exotic beach, and a shiny graduation scroll. Each element pops with vibrant color and a sense of possibility.

Leo, beaming, writes down his 'WHY' statement in bold, flowing letters on a large scroll. 'My WHY is to help others so that I can make a positive difference in the world and live a fulfilling life!' A golden glow emanates from his words, symbolizing his clear purpose. He feels a powerful sense of direction.

I need to start now!

He gazes at his grand vision board, then points a determined finger at the nurse's cap. 'To become a nurse, I need to start now!' he declares. A whimsical magnifying glass appears, zooming in on a math textbook from his desk, linking his big dream to an immediate, academic challenge.

With focused energy, Leo writes his SMART goal: 'By the end of this semester, I will raise my math grade from a C to a B by attending tutoring twice a week and turning in all assignments on time.' The words are neat and organized, framed by a playful calendar and a clock, emphasizing the timeline and action.

Leo ponders his daily habits, a mischievous-looking phone character buzzing temptingly beside him. He makes a firm decision, playfully pointing at the phone. 'To stay on track, I will put my phone in another room while I study each night!' he announces with a confident grin.

True to his word, Leo gently places his buzzing phone into a decorated 'phone-free zone' box in the hallway, its little phone-face looking surprised but resigned. He then returns to his desk, a focused, determined expression on his face, ready to tackle his math homework without distraction. The room feels calm and productive.

Weeks later, Leo stands tall, a proud smile on his face, holding a report card with a shining 'B' in math. He looks confidently towards the horizon, where his vibrant vision board elements, now slightly closer and more tangible, sparkle in the distance. A hero in the making, ready for his next adventure!