

Tiny Pip's Big Picnic Adventure

Hannah Hain

Tiny Pip was a small, busy ant with bright eyes, living inside a large anthill. Every morning, Pip would peek out and watch all the other ants scurrying around, always on important missions.

Today, Tiny Pip wanted to find something special to share with his friends. He wiggled his little antennae, excited for an adventure.

He marched carefully out of the safety of the nest and onto a smooth, warm leaf, feeling like a brave explorer.

Following a winding trail through the tall blades of grass, Pip found an excellent, sunny spot that seemed perfect for a picnic.

Right in the middle of the sunny spot, he saw a bright, sweet red berry. Oh, how his friends would love it!

The berry was way too heavy for Tiny Pip to carry all by himself. He pushed and pulled, but it wouldn't budge.

Looking up, he spotted his strong friend, Ant Big Benny. Pip called out, "Benny, will you help me with this great big berry?"

Together, Pip and Benny lifted the heavy red berry and began carrying it back along the winding path, cheerful and steady.

When they arrived back home, all the ants cheered happily. They worked together to slice the sweet berry into many pieces for everyone.

Tiny Pip felt very happy as he shared the delicious picnic with all his friends. He knew that sharing and helping each other made everything better.
