RAINBOW'S NEW FRIEND

SPECIES: FRIENDLY FLUFFBALL
DIET: CANDY & HUGS

Crunch! Crunch! Nina paused her play when she heard a strange, rhythmic noise echoing across the sunny playground. She looked around with wide eyes, wondering what that mysterious sound could possibly be.

Nina followed the sound to the tall, blue slide, but she couldn't see what was waiting at the very top. As she carefully climbed up the ladder, two large, glowing eyes suddenly peered out from the shadows of the tunnel.

NINA MAKES A FRIEND

A tiny, fuzzy pink monster stepped out into the light, sporting a wide and happy grin. She had beautiful rainbow-colored eyes that sparkled like jewels in the sun, looking much more adorable than scary.

Startled by the unexpected guest, Nina jumped back onto the soft sand of the playground. When Nina asked for a name, the little creature pulled out a notebook and carefully wrote the word 'Rainbow' in bright, colorful letters.

Rainbow proved to be quite a handful, scurrying around and snatching yummy lunch boxes away from the other children. She was so small and fast that she managed to hide several snacks before Nina could stop her.

Nina felt very angry and chased after the little pink monster to get the food back for her friends. She looked Rainbow in the eyes and firmly explained that she couldn't just take things that didn't belong to her.

Despite the warning, Rainbow didn't listen and decided to show off by swinging on the monkey bars. Within seconds, the clumsy little monster found herself tangled up and stuck, dangling helplessly above the ground.

Nina quickly rushed over to help her down, but Rainbow immediately tried to climb back up and got stuck a second time. After rescuing her again, Nina gave her a serious talk about listening and following the playground rules.

Rainbow finally understood and went back to the slide to return every single stolen lunch box to the waiting children. She felt much better doing the right thing and seeing the happy smiles return to her new friends' faces.

The little monster became a playground hero by using her sharp eyes to find everyone's lost toys in the grass. To celebrate their wonderful new friendship, Nina and the kids shared delicious cupcakes together under the afternoon sun.
