Mei Ling's eyes sparkle with excitement as she carefully unboxes a magnificent, royal blue Hanfu in her cozy Beijing apartment. The fabric shimmers, promising a touch of ancient elegance, making her heart flutter with anticipation for her historical drama dreams to come alive.

Transformed, Mei Ling spins gracefully in her new Hanfu, her long, luscious hair styled perfectly in a grand Tang Dynasty updo. She twirls faster, admiring her reflection, when suddenly a dizzying sensation overwhelms her, making the room blur and tilt.

The world around Mei Ling lurches violently, walls shaking and the floor rumbling beneath her feet. A blinding flash of light erupts, engulfing her in a swirling vortex of color and sound, as she clutches her head, wondering what could possibly be happening.

Mei Ling blinks, opening her eyes to a riot of color and bustling activity: a vibrant Tang Dynasty marketplace! People in exquisite traditional robes weave through stalls piled high with exotic goods, and unfamiliar melodies fill the air, leaving her utterly stunned.

A stern General Zhao Yong, flanked by imposing guards, approaches Mei Ling and bows deeply, proclaiming her the 'Seventh Princess.' Mei Ling bursts into disbelieving laughter, thinking it's an elaborate prank for a TV show, much to the general's bewildered confusion.

Despite her protests, two guards gently but firmly lift a bewildered Mei Ling and place her inside a grand, opulent royal carriage. She sits amidst plush silks, still reeling from the shock, as the carriage lurches forward, carrying her into the unknown.

The carriage suddenly halts with a jolt, and frantic shouts of 'BANDITS!' echo through the air. Arrows whiz past the windows with alarming speed, thudding into the carriage walls, sending shivers of fear down Mei Ling's spine.

With a terrifying crash, the carriage is struck and tumbles violently onto its side, rolling down a steep, rocky hill. Mei Ling is tossed about inside, hitting her head hard, and a wave of darkness washes over her as she loses consciousness.

Mei Ling slowly awakens in a sumptuously decorated palace room, dressed in soft, silken robes. Maids rush in, their faces alight with relief, exclaiming loudly, 'The Seventh Princess is awake!' though Mei Ling remembers nothing at all.

Confused, Mei Ling asks the nervous maids who she is, and they reveal her name is Mei Ling, the 'Seventh Princess, feared by all.' Just then, a kind-faced girl, Li Hua, the Fifth Princess, enters, greeting Mei Ling warmly as her older sister.

Hello, Mei Ling,
