

Henrietta the Helicopter

Jin Huang

Henrietta the helicopter lived on a small farm. She loved watching the world go by from her perch on the barn roof, dreaming of adventures.

One sunny morning, Farmer Giles called Henrietta for her first mission. A baby lamb was lost in the nearby forest!

Henrietta whirred to life, her rotors spinning. She took off, her bright red paint gleaming in the sunlight, ready to find the lamb.

She flew over the forest, her pilot, Farmer Giles, carefully scanning the trees. "There!" he shouted, pointing to a small, white shape.

Henrietta gently landed near the lost lamb.
It was frightened and alone, bleating softly.

Farmer Giles scooped up the lamb and carefully placed it inside Henrietta's cozy cabin. Henrietta then took to the skies once more.

As they flew back to the farm, the lamb snuggled against Farmer Giles, feeling safe and warm. Henrietta felt a surge of happiness.

Back at the farm, the lamb was reunited with its mother. The other animals cheered for Henrietta, their new hero.

Henrietta spent the rest of the day giving rides to the farm animals. They loved seeing the world from her unique perspective.

As the sun set, Henrietta returned to her perch on the barn roof, tired but content. She knew that being a helicopter was the best job in the world.