

BOB'S BIG NIGHT OUT

A MONSTER-SIZED ADVENTURE

The Legend of Giant Bob

Tommy Free

A massive blue figure with six pointy ears rises above the distant hills, silhouetted against the evening sky. Bob the spider-monster is so large that the clouds drift around his many legs as he approaches the city.

As Bob takes his first heavy step onto the city pavement, a thunderous boom echoes through the streets. People scream in panic, scattering in every direction to escape the giant blue shadow looming over them.

Bob moves slowly through the narrow streets, his giant body accidentally brushing against skyscrapers and knocking them over like toy blocks. The sound of falling stone and glass is a terrifying warning that the monster is near.

Under the cover of night, Bob's glowing eyes peek around the corners of dark alleys. To stay alive, the citizens must stay awake all night, watching the rooftops for any sign of the blue giant moving through the dark.

BOB'S EPIC SCREAM

Suddenly, a piercing and annoying scream rips through the air, shaking the windows of every home. Bob lets out his signature cry, a loud bang that lets everyone know he is just around the corner and looking for a chase.

Brave citizens try to stand their ground, but Bob is simply too strong to be taken down by anything they have. He ignores their efforts and continues to walk over buildings, his massive presence making him impossible to stop.

A group of people watches from a distance, realizing that Bob is bigger than the entire city itself. They know that trying to fight him is useless, so they focus on finding the best places to hide where he cannot reach.

Bob's heavy feet crush abandoned cars and flatten city parks as he wanders aimlessly through the urban maze. Although he moves slowly, his sheer size means every single step covers an entire city block.

Deep in the shadows, people run fast and find small hiding spots where the giant cannot see them. Bob continues his slow chase, his six ears twitching as he listens for anyone who might be foolish enough to annoy him.

From the safety of a dark living room, a child peers through the curtains at the massive blue spider standing among the ruins. The lesson is clear to everyone in the city: stay inside, stay quiet, and never ever mess with Bob.
