

Leo's Addition Adventure

Debika Laha

Leo the little orange fox woke up in his cozy den, excited for a beautiful sunny day in the green forest. He found 1 big, ripe raspberry right outside his doorway, its sweet smell filling the air. This was a wonderful start to his morning snack.

Walking along the winding path, Leo spotted a tiny, shimmering pond where his friend Finny the fish lived. Beside a smooth grey stone, 2 bright red strawberries were waiting. Now, with the raspberry and the strawberries, Leo had even more delicious treats in his paws.

Leo continued his walk, his stomach giving a happy rumble as he watched butterfly wings flutter. Near an ancient oak tree, he discovered 3 round blue blueberries nestled among the fallen leaves. His paws were now quite full with the colorful assortment of fresh berries.

While admiring his colorful berries, a wise old owl named Hoot perched quietly on a high branch. Hoot hooted gently, pointing towards an inviting path Leo had never explored before. Following the friendly owl's direction, Leo skipped with anticipation into the deeper, greener parts of the forest.

Following Hoot's suggested path, Leo emerged into a bright clearing filled with soft grass and friendly sunshine. To his delight, 2 crisp, red apples were lying on the greenest patch of grass, as if placed just for him. He imagined how good they would taste alongside his sweet berries.

Leo carefully set all his findings on the soft green grass, organizing them neatly in two distinct groups. He placed his 1 raspberry, 2 strawberries, and 3 blueberries together in one large berry bunch. On the other side, he lined up the 2 crisp red apples he had just discovered.

Curious about how much fruit he actually had in total, Leo sat down and started with the berries. Pointing at each one, he carefully said, 'one, two, three, four, five, six berries!' He felt quite clever as he finished counting the complete berry group.

Now it was time for the apples, which was much easier as there were fewer to count. Leo simply pointed at the first one and then the second, stating with confidence, 'one, two apples.' He sat and looked at his two organized piles of delicious, forest-found food.

Looking between the berry pile and the apple pile, Leo decided he wanted to know his very big total number. Pushing all the fruit together into one massive, colorful mound, he started counting from one again, all the way up to eight. 'One, two, three, four, five, six... seven, eight pieces of fruit!'

Feeling very proud of his newfound counting skills and full of sweet fruit, Leo found a sunny spot by the stream. He happily crunched on an apple, enjoying the warmth and the sounds of the peaceful woods surrounding him. Learning new things and having a great snack made for a truly perfect day.
