Aunt Carol's Valentine Hugs

Carolyn Muller

Aunt Carol loved Valentine's Day because it was a perfect time to show extra love to her favorite people. Her heart felt so full of warmth, it practically glowed with happiness. She thought of her wonderful nieces and nephews and started planning something special just for them.

First, there was Levi, with his brilliant ideas and endless energy. Aunt Carol adored his clever mind and how he could turn anything into an exciting adventure. He always made her laugh with his funny stories and inventions, bringing joy to every moment.

Then came Peyton, whose gentle spirit and artistic flair brightened every room. Aunt Carol cherished Peyton's thoughtful nature and the way she expressed herself through vibrant colors. Her drawings were always full of imagination and heartfelt beauty.

Next was Blake, brave and always ready for a new challenge. Aunt Carol admired his courage and how he fearlessly explored the world around him. He had a heart as big as his adventurous spirit, always eager for the next big discovery.

And finally, precious Aubrey, with her curious questions and love for stories. Aunt Carol loved Aubrey's sweet hugs and the way she saw magic in everyday things. Her imagination was truly boundless, making every day feel like a fairy tale.

Aunt Carol thought about each of them, remembering all their special moments together. Every giggle, every shared secret, and every big hug filled her heart with immense joy. Being their aunt was the greatest gift she could ever ask for.

She imagined them all playing together, chasing colorful butterflies and sharing delicious snacks under a sunny sky. Their laughter echoed in her mind like the sweetest music, a melody of pure happiness. These were the moments she treasured most.

A wave of gratitude washed over Aunt Carol. She was so incredibly thankful to be their aunt, to watch them grow, and to share in their amazing lives. Her love for them was a never-ending adventure, growing stronger with each passing day.

So, on this special Valentine's Day, Aunt Carol sent them the biggest, warmest, most squishy hug ever. It was a hug packed with all her love, reaching out to Levi, Peyton, Blake, and Aubrey, wherever they were.

She wanted them to know, always and forever, that Aunt Carol loves them more than words can say. Happy Valentine's Day, my dear ones! May your hearts be as full of love as mine is for you.
