

Leo's First Day in the Happy Classroom

Valeria Lorenzo

One sunny morning, Leo the Lion stands excitedly at the entrance of his new school with a bright blue backpack. He looks around the vibrant classroom and sees Mia the Monkey, Ellie the Elephant, Zara the Zebra, and Tim the Turtle all waiting to meet him.

Ms. Owl, the wise teacher wearing round spectacles, stands by a colorful chalkboard and welcomes the class with a warm smile. She tells the animals that their room is a special place called the Happy Classroom, where everyone follows five simple rules to stay happy.

For the first rule, Ms. Owl explains that everyone must listen when someone else is talking. Leo and his new friends sit quietly on a soft, patterned rug, keeping their ears open and their eyes on their teacher to show they are paying attention.

Mia the Monkey demonstrates the second rule by calmly raising her hand when she wants to ask a question. Ms. Owl smiles and calls on her, showing Leo that in the Happy Classroom, everyone waits for their turn to speak.

Leo decides to try the new rule himself, raising his golden paw high in the air with a proud smile. He feels very happy when Ms. Owl acknowledges him, realizing that raising his hand is a great way to participate in the lesson.

During art time, Zara the Zebra notices that Leo doesn't have any colors and kindly offers him her box of bright crayons. This represents the third rule of sharing, and Leo feels a warm glow of friendship as he accepts the gift with a big thank you.

When it is time to move to the next activity, Leo notices Tim the Turtle walking very slowly across the room. Remembering the fourth rule to be kind, Leo walks patiently beside Tim and encourages him, making sure no friend is left behind.

After a morning of fun, the classroom is covered in scattered books and stray crayons. Ms. Owl claps her wings and announces it is time for the fifth rule, which is to tidy up their workspace so the room can be clean again.

The animals sing a cheerful song as they work together, with Leo picking up crayons and Ellie using her trunk to push in the chairs. In just a few minutes, the classroom is sparkling and organized, showing how much they can achieve when they work as a team.

At the end of the day, Leo stands before his classmates and proudly recites all the rules he learned. All the animals cheer and hug their new friend, celebrating a perfect first day filled with laughter and learning in the Happy Classroom.
