A Tale of Freedom & Bravery

BABY MOSHE - A RIVER'S JOURNEY

A tiny baby named Moshe sits in a cozy, woven basket. The basket floats softly on a sparkling blue river among the green plants.

A kind princess with a golden crown finds the basket near the water. She gives baby Moshe a warm smile and holds him safely in her arms.

Moshe grows up to be a very brave and kind man. He lives in a big, colorful palace but wants to help all his friends be happy.

Moshe sees his people working very hard in the hot sun. He wants everyone to be free, so he decides to talk to the King of Egypt.

Moshe stands in a grand room full of gold and talks to the King, the Pharaoh. He says, "Please let my people go to a new home."

Finally, the King says "Yes!" and everyone is so excited. They start their big adventure to find a place where they can be happy.

Everyone packs their bags very fast and carries bowls of dough on their shoulders. They walk together under a beautiful, bright sky.

The hot sun turns the flat dough into crunchy, square Matzah. It is a special bread that makes a loud crunch when they eat it.

When they reach the big blue sea, the water moves to the side to make a path. Everyone walks across safely on the dry, soft sand.

EXODUS - THE FINAL CROSSING

On the other side of the sea, everyone dances and sings happy songs. They are all free now, and they celebrate their wonderful journey together.
