

The Adventures of Amina at BT Institute

by Jason Selorm

Amina, a curious young girl, stood before the colorful entrance of BT Institute. The building was adorned with flags from all over the world, hinting at the diverse languages taught inside. Excitement bubbled within her as she clutched her enrollment form, ready for her first day.

Inside, Amina entered a bustling classroom where students of all ages were learning different languages. Teachers, with warm smiles, were guiding their students. Amina's eyes widened, taking in the lively atmosphere and the sounds of various languages being spoken.

Amina chose to learn French. Her teacher, Madame Sophie, was patient and encouraging. She introduced Amina to the basics: greetings, numbers, and simple phrases. Amina, eager to learn, quickly absorbed the new words.

During a break, Amina met students from different countries. They shared stories, laughed together, and practiced their languages with each other. A new friend, Kwame, helped Amina with her pronunciation. They bonded over their shared love for learning.

One day, BT Institute hosted a cultural festival. Students showcased their cultures through food, music, and dance. Amina, along with her friends, performed a French song. The joy of sharing and celebrating was palpable.

As the year ended, Amina felt a deep sense of accomplishment. She had not only learned French but also gained confidence and made lifelong friends. BT Institute had opened a world of possibilities, making her feel ready to explore the world, one language at a time.
