

Ming Le's Panda Adventure

Eng-Huat Lee

The sun shone bright as Ming Le, a happy little boy, held his mommy Maggie's hand. They were going on a special adventure today, a trip to see the pandas!

Ming Le felt so excited, his eyes sparkling like little stars. He bounced up and down, eager to reach the Chengdu Research Base, a magical place full of bamboo.

Upon arrival, Ming Le looked around, amazed by the lush green bamboo trees swaying gently. Mommy Maggie smiled, holding him close, sharing in his wonder.

Suddenly, they spotted two big, fluffy pandas! One was munching on bamboo, and the other was lazily rolling around. "Look, Mommy!" Ming Le whispered, pointing.

These were Ye Ye and Hua Hua, the famous pandas! Ye Ye was a big, sleepy panda, and Hua Hua was a playful one, tumbling over a log.

Ming Le giggled as Hua Hua did a funny somersault. Mommy Maggie hugged him tight, feeling his joy. It was a perfect moment, just them and the pandas.

Ming Le snuggled into his mommy's arms, feeling safe and warm. From this cozy spot, he could see Ye Ye slowly chewing his bamboo, looking very content.

He watched Hua Hua climb a small tree, then slide down with a happy squeak. Ming Le wished he could hug a panda, they looked so soft and cuddly.

Mommy Maggie gently swayed Ming Le, humming a soft tune. The pandas seemed to be humming along too, in their own quiet, bamboo-munching way.

As the day ended, Ming Le waved goodbye to Ye Ye and Hua Hua. He knew he would remember this special panda day with his mommy forever, a memory as sweet as bamboo.
