

The Reset of Elara

by Ronald Scott

Elara stood at the edge of a dark forest, the weight of the past heavy on her shoulders. Whispers of old hurts and patterns echoed around her. She knew she had to find a way to break free from this place of shadows, but the path forward was unclear.

A small, flickering light appeared in the distance, beckoning Elara forward. Hesitantly, she began to walk towards it, the darkness slowly receding with each step. This was a symbol of hope, a gentle nudge toward something new.

Reaching the light, Elara saw a wise, old woman sitting beneath a starry sky. The woman smiled, her eyes filled with understanding. She offered Elara a seed, telling her it was a chance for a fresh beginning.

Elara, clutching the seed, wandered through a sunlit meadow. She remembered the courage to ask for guidance, and how she felt the power to turn a new page. The vibrant landscape was a reflection of the peace she now felt.

With a deep breath, Elara planted the seed. As she watered it, a feeling of renewal washed over her, and the meadow began to bloom with life. This was the start of her reset: spiritually, mentally, and emotionally.

Elara, now surrounded by a beautiful garden, turned to face the forest one last time. She smiled, knowing that she could choose to leave the shadows behind. The journey of healing had begun, and she was ready to embrace her new life.