

The Little Star's Wish

by Арука Нургазиева

High above the world, in a sea of twinkling lights, lived a tiny star named Lumi. Her light was small compared to her radiant neighbors, and she often felt a pang of sadness. Every night, she watched the Earth below, wondering if anyone noticed her gentle sparkle.

In a cozy little town, lived a young boy named Timur. Every night, he would gaze up at the starry sky, whispering a secret wish. He longed for his mother's health to improve, hoping a falling star might grant his deepest desire.

Lumi overheard Timur's heartfelt wish and felt a conflict within her. She knew falling might mean the end, but the thought of helping the boy filled her with a new kind of courage. Taking a deep breath, she made her decision.

That night, a fierce wind swept across the sky, and dark clouds gathered. Lumi felt a sudden push and began to fall, tumbling through the darkness. A glowing meteor appeared beside her, offering comfort and guidance.

Lumi landed softly near Timur's window, transforming into a tiny spark of light. She rested gently on his hand, her glow filling the room. At that moment, Timur's mother smiled painlessly for the first time in a long while.

The next morning, Timur looked at the sky and smiled, remembering the star. He whispered, "Maybe that star didn't fall for nothing." Lumi's light had granted a miracle, proving that even the smallest of lights can illuminate the world with love and hope.