

Marmalade's Masterpiece Bathroom

Evgenii Chernykh

Marmalade, a fluffy orange tabby with a tiny hard hat, stands proudly in a dusty bathroom. Tools are neatly organized around him, and a blueprint for a new shower design is taped to the wall. He surveys the empty space with a thoughtful, professional gaze.

He carefully unwraps a stack of large, glossy tiles, admiring their smooth surface. Sunlight streams through the window, highlighting the beautiful patterns on the tiles. Marmalade's tail twitches with anticipation.

With a focused expression, Marmalade dips his trowel into a bucket of creamy, gray mortar. He scoops a generous amount, making sure it's just right. His whiskers are slightly dusted with the fine powder.

Marmalade expertly spreads the mortar onto the back of a large tile using his trowel. He works with steady, precise movements, ensuring an even layer. Not a single smudge escapes his keen eyes.

He lifts the heavy, mortared tile with both paws, demonstrating surprising strength. His muscles flex slightly as he carefully positions it. The tile is nearly as big as he is!

With a gentle but firm push, Marmalade presses the tile onto the shower wall. He adjusts it slightly, making sure it's perfectly aligned with the laser level. A small, satisfied 'mew' escapes him.

Marmalade steps back, head tilted, inspecting his work. The first tile is perfectly in place, shining brightly. He nods, a tiny smile gracing his whiskered face, proud of his initial progress.

He repeats the process, applying mortar and carefully placing another tile next to the first. The tiles fit together seamlessly, creating a clean, modern pattern on the wall. He hums a little tune as he works.

The shower wall slowly fills with magnificent tiles. Marmalade works diligently, his movements efficient and practiced. He occasionally pauses to clean a stray bit of mortar with a tiny cloth.

Finally, the entire shower wall is tiled, gleaming and beautiful. Marmalade stands back, admiring his finished work with immense satisfaction. He gives a triumphant little purr, his tail swishing gently.

Marmalade, now seated on a pristine, newly tiled bench, sips a small cup of milk. The renovated bathroom sparkles around him, a testament to his skill and dedication. He looks content, ready for his next purr-fect project.