by perpustakaan caradik

Nasyila, a cheerful girl with bright eyes, stood in front of her middle school. She wore her crisp white shirt and a vibrant red skirt, ready for the first day of school. Excitement and a touch of nervousness bubbled inside her as she clutched her backpack.

Inside the school, Nasyila walked through the crowded hallways, searching for her classroom. She spotted some familiar faces, and a smile spread across her face. Finding her homeroom, she took a seat and greeted her teacher, who welcomed everyone warmly.

During recess, Nasyila met two new friends: a kind girl named Rina and a playful boy named Budi. They started playing games and sharing stories, and their laughter echoed through the schoolyard. Together, they explored the school and its surroundings.

In the art class, Nasyila, Rina, and Budi collaborated on a colorful project. They learned about different art techniques and let their imaginations run wild. Their teamwork and creativity turned the classroom into a bright, inspiring space.

One day, Nasyila faced a challenge when she struggled with a difficult math problem. Rina and Budi offered their help, working together to find the solution. Nasyila realized the power of friendship and the joy of helping one another.

As the school year progressed, Nasyila grew more confident and found her place in the school community. She learned valuable lessons about friendship, perseverance, and the importance of being herself. Nasyila, Rina, and Budi looked forward to their future adventures together, still in their white and red uniforms.
