

The Whispering Woods and Elara's Secret

by Nicolás Cuadros

Elara loved playing in the Whispering Woods. While she was skipping through the trees one sunny afternoon, she heard a strange rustling. A shadowy figure emerged as she was admiring a bluebird.

Elara tried to run, but before she could, a hand grabbed her. She was struggling as she was being carried away. Suddenly, she saw the last of the sunlight disappear behind the trees.

When Elara woke up, she was in a dark, cold cave. While she waited, she heard the echo of footsteps. The kidnapper, a shifty looking man, entered the cave with a torch.

Elara's parents were frantic when they realized she was gone. While the search party was organizing, her brave father decided to venture into the Whispering Woods alone. He remembered Elara's favorite hiding spot, hoping she would be there.

The father followed some tracks. While he was searching, he stumbled upon the entrance to a hidden cave. He knew it was the right place when he heard Elara's faint cry.

As the man was reaching for Elara, her father burst in. While the man was distracted, Elara seized the chance to run into her father's arms. They escaped from the cave as the police apprehended the man. They went home and Elara lived happily ever after.
