

The Great Farmyard Fix

by K Quinn

Pip the pig lived on Farmer Giles' farm. The sun shone, and the day was bright. Pip loved to help out, but today was different.

First, the tractor stopped with a clunk! It sat still in the field. Pip looked at it with a frown.

Next, the combine harvester would not start. It was a big, red machine. The farmer was worried!

Then, the water pump made a strange hiss and stopped. The animals needed water! Pip knew something was wrong.

Pip went to see his friend, Dot the dog.
Dot had a good nose. They looked at the machines together.

They found a small, wet patch near the tractor. "Hmm," said Dot, sniffing the ground. "It smells like... mud!"

Pip and Dot went to see Ben the bull. Ben was very strong. They needed help to fix the pump.

Ben helped Pip and Dot, and they found a loose pipe! They fixed it, and the water flowed.

They all worked together to fix the tractor and the combine. Soon, all the machines were working again!

Farmer Giles smiled. Pip, Dot, and Ben were heroes! The farm was saved, and everyone was happy.
