

Leo's Big City Adventure

by Dave St. Germain

Leo, a small lion cub with a fluffy mane, peeked out from behind a giant skyscraper. He had never seen anything like it! The city was a maze of tall buildings, bustling cars, and people hurrying everywhere.

Suddenly, Leo spotted a colorful hot air balloon rising high above the city. His eyes lit up with excitement. He decided then and there that he would explore this incredible place.

Leo cautiously took his first steps into the city, his little paws padding softly on the pavement. He was immediately captivated by the vibrant lights, sounds, and smells of this new world. Cars zoomed by, honking their horns; vendors called out selling all sorts of treats.

He met a friendly poodle named Penny, who showed him the best spots to find delicious street food. They shared a yummy ice cream cone, laughing and enjoying their adventure together. They became fast friends.

As the sun began to set, painting the sky in beautiful hues, Leo and Penny found a cozy park. They sat on a bench, watching the city lights twinkle on, feeling a sense of belonging.

Leo, tired but happy, snuggled up close to Penny. He realized that the city wasn't so scary after all, and he had made a wonderful friend. He knew, with a happy heart, that the city was now his home.
